French Labor Strike Threat

Leaders Rally To Retain 40-hour Week

DALADIER TO ACT

PARIS (AP)—French labor leaders rallied their forces today to fight the Daladier government for retention of the 40-hour week, and labor circles foresaw the possibility of a general strike.

The general confederation of labor which lists 5,000,000 members, and most other unions ordered their members to be ready for action. Foremost in the offensive were waterfront unions, fighting government efforts to force Marseille stevedores to unload perishables during the week-end and thereby exceed their 40-hour work period.

The Federation of Port Workers' Unions said "grave decisions" would be made soon unless extra pay for overtime was granted the Marseille members, and labor circles said this was a threat of a strike in all French ports.

The situation evolved from Premier Daladier's proposal Sunday night to increase working periods to speed national defence and industrial output because of the uncertain international situation.

The Minister of Public Works and the Minister of Labor resigned but quickly were replaced by Anatole de Monzie and Charles Pomaret, also members of the Socialist Union Party, an ally of the powerful Socialist Party.

This did not ease opposition to Daladier's plan, however. Socialist and Communist sources said.

The Premier was said to be considering a special session of Parliament in the belief he could win his point with the support of the Rightist parties which hailed his stand as that of a "courageous patriot."

SERIOUS, SAYS BLUM

Former Premier Leon Blum, who headed the government which made the 40-hour week the law of France, declared in an editorial in the Socialist organ Le Populaire that the situation was too serious to exploit difficulties which Daladier had placed in his own path.

"The hour is too grave for that," Blum wrote, "but he (Daladier) should be warned that for one to renege social legislation to affect the working class, one cannot count on the working class and cannot count on the Socialist Party."

WANTS LIGHT ON "LOST" LOT

W. Walla built a home at 2038 Foul Bay Road and now he wonders how he will find light for it.

Today Victor Rolfe, city wiring inspector went into the newly-located "no man's land" to determine where the house is.

No building permit has yet been taken out for the structure and consequently it is registered neither with Saanich nor the city. Water service has been provided, but Saanich reports no knowledge of it. The Victoria department is equally lacking in information.

It was a problem today as to which municipality would provide services. But with taxes assured for years to come, it was a foregone conclusion one of the two would claim it.

THE WEATHER

VICTORIA, 9 a.m. today—Pressure is high over northeastern British Columbia and also off the coast. The weather has been fine and warm in the western portion, but cool in eastern districts with a few light scattered showers in the Kootenays. It has been quite cool throughout the prairie provinces.

Police Inspector James O'Neill announced today the arrest of Albert Frank, 35, and recovery of several thousand dollars worth of loot taken from the home of Raymond Cox, insurance company executive. O'Neill said the loot was found in a shed in the rear of Frank's home.

Cox and his wife are attending an insurance convention in Vancouver, and the burglary was discovered when fire broke out in their home shortly after three persons were seen leaving the house. Police said the fire, which did little damage, was apparently started to cover up the burglary.

New Approach to Vexed Question

Great Britain Not Throwing up Hands Over Spain

LONDON (CP Cable)—Informal conferences have started between the Earl of Plymouth, chairman, and other chief members of the Nonintervention Committee looking toward a new approach to the vexed and complicated question of withdrawal of foreign volunteers from Spain.

It was considered unlikely the committee or the subcommittee made up of principal members, would be convened at present, but Lord Plymouth has discussed insistent General Franco's virtual rejection of the British plan for removing volunteers with representatives of France, Italy, Germany Portugal and Soviet Russia.

Until the views of the various countries are clarified, a meeting of the committee was improbable. Later today Viscount Halifax, Foreign Secretary will confer with Lord Plymouth and both may interview Prime Minister Chamberlain.

There was no indication Great Britain was throwing up its hands over Spain. The basic policy continued to be to localize the conflict to minimize its effect on general European peace.

At the same time, no efforts were made to hide the seriousness of General Franco's blow to the general policy of nonintervention.

The Times (Independent) suggested "the Italian government, by giving their acceptance of the plan some practical effect could do what Franco is ready to do only in return for concessions at (Turn to Page 2, Col. 5)

Fire Menaces Cowichan Camp

Wind May Mean Destruction of V.L. & M. Property

Weather conditions today held the fate of Camp 10 of the Victoria Lumber and Manufacturing Company which was menaced by the flank of the 3,000-acre forest fire at Cowichan Lake.

Officials of the company said a change in the direction of the wind may mean the destruction of the camp. Fire breaks were constructed around the camp, but a high wind would whip the flames over them, it was feared.

An unofficial estimate of the loss caused by the blaze, which started Saturday, included 10,000,000 feet of cut and piled logs and considerable equipment.

The equipment lost is reported to have included two skidders and two or three donkey engines. Confirmation of this could not be secured today from company officials at Chemainus as they were away at the fire.

While a crew of between 175 and 200 fighters attempted to stem the progress of the blaze, the flames raged over 40,000,000 feet of timber lying on the ground. Their advance over this timber, however, was so fast that it was believed most of it could be saved with only a scorching.

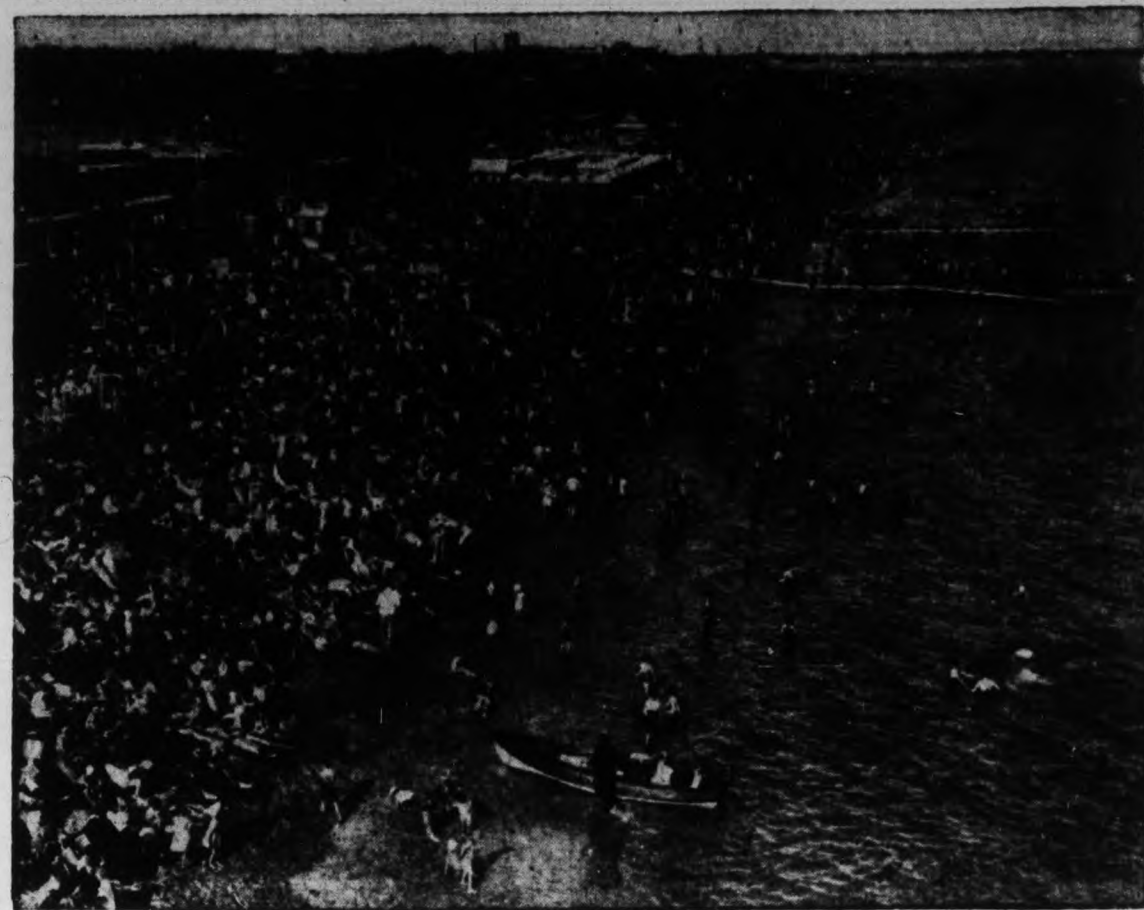

Failure of the wind to rise presented a possibility the fire might be controlled by tonight.

POLICE RECOVER VALUABLE LOOT

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—An unemployed electrician was held in jail today and two other persons, one a woman, were sought for questioning in connection with the arson-burglary of a palatial Sacramento home early Sunday.

Police Inspector James O'Neill announced today the arrest of Albert Frank, 35, and recovery of several thousand dollars worth of loot taken from the home of Raymond Cox, insurance company executive. O'Neill said the loot was found in a shed in the rear of Frank's home.

Cox and his wife are attending an insurance convention in Vancouver, and the burglary was discovered when fire broke out in their home shortly after three persons were seen leaving the house. Police said the fire, which did little damage, was apparently started to cover up the burglary.

4 Greeks Given Death Sentence

Nephew of Venizelos Among Rebels Condemned at Canea

ATHENS, Greece (AP)—A court martial at Canea, capital of the island of Crete, today sentenced to death four leaders of an abortive anti-government putsch on July 28.

None of them was present at the hearing, nor were the three given life sentences or 34 others sentenced to 1 to 20 years' imprisonment. They have no right of appeal unless they give themselves up within a month.

The death sentence was imposed on Aristomimis Mitsotakis, nephew of the late Premier Eleutherios C. Venizelos, and three others.

On July 28, 400 armed men seized the garrison at Canea. Within a day Premier John Metaxas subdued the rebellion by ordering army, navy and air forces to the island. The next day Metaxas was named premier for life.

Suicide Insurance Studied

Agents Consider Safeguards to Protect Canadian Policies Against Court Decision

Hardworking insurance men, after nine hours yesterday arguing the highly technical points of insurance legislation and a further session this morning before the Association of Insurance Superintendents, took time off this afternoon for some golf and sightseeing tours of the city.

A special session of the conference was called tonight, however, to consider an important report on life insurance dealing with the questions of group insurance contracts and payment of policies on suicides.

Practically all Canadian life insurance contracts carry a "suicide clause," which guarantees payment so long as the suicide does not occur within either one year or two years of the policy being taken out, the report points out.

However, a decision of the English courts has ruled that insurance companies should not pay on suicides at any time. It holds that it is "contrary to public policy" that a person who commits a crime, or her personal representative, should benefit from the crime.

An amendment to existing insurance law in Canada is now proposed to safeguard suicide clauses and allow payment on policies after two years have expired.

BATTLING ON TWO SPANISH FRONTS

HENDAYE, France (AP)—A general insurgent offensive appeared blocked today on the key sector of the Ebro front, although in central Spain, along the Tagus River, government troops were giving ground.

Observers considered the fighting on the two fronts perhaps the heaviest in the 25-month-old civil war, with artillery, tanks and airplanes used by both sides on a scale scarcely approached before.

Hunger Strikers Died by Scalding

Investigations Opened Into Death of Four Pennsylvania Prisoners

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Coroner Charles H. Hersch said today examination of the bodies of four hunger-striking prisoners found in cells at the Philadelphia county prison showed definitely the men were scalded to death.

"There is no question but these men met their death by scalding," he said. "Their hands were shriveled, indicating immersion in hot water or steam."

Warden William B. Mills said he could not contradict the coroner, but "can't see how that could have taken place."

"We certainly used no steam or hot water on the men," he said, "and there are no steam or hot water pipes in the building in which they were confined."

U.S. Will Probe Nazi Activities

WASHINGTON (AP)—The house committee investigating un-American activities decided today to split into three groups and shifts its inquiry from Communism to Fascist and Nazi organizations.

Chairman Dies, Democrat, Texas, announced that public hearings would be recessed after today's session. He said a subcommittee of four headed by Representative Starnes, Democrat, Alabama, would go to New York for a preliminary examination of material gathered for the new phase of the inquiry.

"We are not here on behalf of any corporation or any government," Sir Henry explained. "We are exploring to see if a scheme can be worked out between British, Dominion and provincial governments to develop Canadian land with British people."

Sir Henry has insisted that nothing would be done by his scheme to increase Canadian unemployment. He has suggested that each settler accepted by Canada should be given enough money to erect his farm building and finance his family for two years, after which time his farm would support him.

He emphasizes that selection of British families for life in Canada (Turn to Page 2, Col. 8)

SCHACHT ORDERED BACK TO BERLIN

OSLO, Norway (AP)—Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, president of the German Reichsbank, was suddenly recalled today from a vacation tour of northern Norway. He reached Oslo by airplane on his way to Berlin.

BERLIN (AP)—The news of Dr. Hjalmar Schacht's sudden return to Berlin from a vacation in Norway caused surprise even in the Reichsbank, of which he is president.

A Reichsbank spokesman said Schacht intended to stay longer. He could offer no explanation of the president's return.

The best guess in financial circles was the financier might be needed for economic discussions between Hungarian and German authorities regarding better economic relations between the two countries.

May Undermine Preference On Canada Wheat

RUSSIANS CROSS SAKHALIN BORDER

TOKIO (AP)—A dispatch to the newspaper Yomiuri from Toyohara, Japanese Sakhalin, today reported Soviet Russian guards entered Japanese territory near Sakhalin's western seacoast, but disappeared when Japanese guards approached.

The boundary between the Japanese and Russian sections of Sakhalin, island north of Japan proper, has been the scene of almost constant Russo-Japanese friction, similar to that on the Siberian-Manchukuo border.

Alaska Road Body Sought

Premier Tells U.S. Commissioners He Will Urge Canadian Action

The appointment of a Canadian commission to work with a similar body already appointed by the United States in furthering the B.C.-Alaska Highway project will be sought from Ottawa by Premier Pattullo.

The Premier made this announcement after a conference here this morning with three of the U.S. commissioners. Representative Warren G. Magnusson, Donald MacDonald and James W. Carey from Seattle.

"The appointment of a Canadian commission is, of course, a matter for the federal government," the Premier said. "But I shall take it up with the Prime Minister and suggest that a commission be chosen."

The U.S. commission consists of five men: Thomas Riggs, former Governor of Alaska, and Dr. W. Gruening, director of territories and foreign possessions for the Department of the Interior, complete the personnel.

"We would like to see a Canadian commission chosen, similar to our own," said Mr. MacDonald. (Turn to Page 2, Col. 6)

FRENCH-ATLANTIC PLANE AT LISBON

LISBON (AP)—The French flying boat Lieutenant de Vaisseau Paris alighted on the Tagus River here at 4:05 p.m. (8:05 a.m., P.S.T.) today, completing the first leg of an experimental flight to New York.

BORDEAUX, France (AP)—French seaplane, Lieutenant de Vaisseau Paris, took off for an experimental flight to New York at 9:45 a.m. (12:45 a.m., P.S.T.). The plane left from Biscarosse Airport.

It was announced the plane would fly via Lisbon and Horta, The Azores.

The ship started for New York August 18 but returned with propeller trouble. Henri Guillemet was pilot with seven assistants.

On August 3 rumors that Britain might put U.S. wheat on the free lists had evidently already reached Winnipeg, for the grain exchange in that city went on record as urging the government to oppose the loss of preference for Canadian wheat, particularly for this year, when Canada's surplus would be large and the world demand uncertain.

England Sets Record

Scores 903 Runs For Seven Wickets (Declared) Against Australia to Set World Cricket Mark; Leonard Hutton Puts on 364; Bradman Injured

LONDON (CP)—A battle-scarred, weary Australian cricket team scored 117 runs for three wickets at close of play late today after England had declared its first innings with a score of 903 runs for seven wickets in the concluding test match between the two countries. The English total was the highest ever made in Anglo-Australian tests.

Australia's innings started disastrously, C. L. Badcock being caught off William Bowes before a run had been scored. Stanley McCabe, vice-captain, joined W. A. Brown but the second wicket fell at 19, the former being caught at short-leg.

Brown and A. L. Hassett carried the score to 70 when the latter's breezy innings ended with his total at 42. He was caught at long-leg by Denis Compton in attempting to score his sixth boundary.

Playing doggedly, Brown was partnered by Sidney Barnes and the pair took the score to 117. The Queenslanders had made 29 when stumps were drawn and Barnes 25.

HUTTON HERO

The Englishmen required 15 hours to create the new innings record, 174 runs better than the previous mark set by the Australians at Lord's in 1930. Hero of the innings, 22-year-old Leonard Hutton, became the world's leading test match scorer with 364 runs.

Injuries robbed the invaders of Don Bradman, famous captain, and J. H. Fingleton and it is probable the former will be unable to participate further in the game. He slipped shortly before the tea interval today and was carried off with a badly sprained ankle. Fingleton strained a leg muscle yesterday and was unable to play today. E. S. White and Frank Ward substituted in the (Turn to Page 2, Col. 3)

Handwriting on Wall Seen in New Pact

OTTAWA COMMENT

OTTAWA (CP)—While Dominion Government officials label as "guesswork," the reports from Britain that United States wheat may be allowed free access into United Kingdom markets under the new trade agreement the two countries are negotiating in Washington, there is a feeling here these reports will turn out to be the handwriting on the wall and Canada will lose the preference it now enjoys over all other wheat from North America.

Before the 1932 Imperial Economic Conference in Ottawa, the United Kingdom wheat markets were free to the world. At that conference the United Kingdom delegation agreed to ask the British Parliament to put a tariff on all wheat from foreign countries of two shillings a quarter (eight bushels), roughly six cents a bushel, and allow Empire wheat to continue to enter free. Prime Minister R. B. Bennett at that time was said to have been largely responsible for the British delegation agreeing to this proposal.

The British Parliament later made good the delegation's undertaking and an impost of two shillings a quarter was imposed on all wheat from foreign countries with the provision the duties might be removed at any time the Empire countries were unable or unwilling to supply wheat to the United Kingdom at world prices.

ROUTING CHANGED

In order to be sure what was Empire and what was foreign wheat, the customs authorities in Britain prepared regulations which provided that only wheat with through bills of lading from an Empire country to a British port would be admitted free. This was done, it was explained, to insure that only Canadian wheat from North America came in free.

This had the tendency of switching Canadian wheat which usually went by New York and New England states ports for Liverpool, to Montreal, Quebec, Saint John and Halifax because of the difficulty of proving to the satisfaction of British customs officials that Canadian wheat arriving from a U.S. port was actually from Canada.

Should U.S. wheat be allowed to enter United Kingdom markets free, on the same basis as Canadian wheat, there will be no necessity to earmark Canadian wheat, it is expected, and it will flow to the United Kingdom market by the most economical and most convenient route. Buffalo shipping interests have frequently protested against the damage it was claimed was done that transshipping port by the preference routing wheat away from New York.

On August 3 rumors that Britain might put U.S. wheat on the free lists had evidently already reached Winnipeg, for the grain exchange in that city went on record as urging the government to oppose the loss of preference for Canadian wheat, particularly for this year, when Canada's surplus would be large and the world demand uncertain.

FREE ACCESS

MANCHESTER, Eng. (CP)—The Manchester Guardian (Liberal), in a dispatch from London today, predicted the Anglo-American agreement now being negotiated would give the United States free access to the British wheat market. Board of Trade officials in London would not comment.

The Guardian said that in preliminary discussions last year between United Kingdom and Canadian cabinet ministers, the Canadians indicated their willingness to surrender Empire preference in wheat in the cause of better Anglo-American trade.

It was considered unlikely in London a treaty would be signed before mid-September, though only minor details were declared to remain to be adjusted.

Under the Ottawa agreements of 1932 wheat from the Dominions receives a preference of 6c (Turn to Page 2, Col. 1) a bushel over the foreign-grown wheat on the United Kingdom market. Canadian wheat receives this preference when shipped through Canadian ports.

WASHINGTON (CP)—Press reports from London that under a provision of the projected Anglo-American trade pact United States wheat would enter the United Kingdom market on the same basis as Canadian and Australian grain, brought no comment from state department officials here today.

The department officials, negotiating in Washington with British trade experts for many weeks, declined to discuss any provision the agreement might contain.

U.S. shipping and port officials long have sought a way around the preference of 6c a bushel Canadian grain receives in the United Kingdom when shipped through a Canadian port. Grain elevator interests of Buffalo have blamed the preference for a falling off in use of storage facilities at that Great Lake port. Boston and New York port and shipping interests also have campaigned against the preference.

WINNIPEG (CP)—Paul Bredt, president of Manitoba Pool Elevators Ltd., today reaffirmed his organization's stand against removal of the preference granted Canadian wheat in the United Kingdom market.

In commenting on a Manchester dispatch mentioning the possibility the preference might disappear under an Anglo-American trade pact, Mr. Bredt referred to two resolutions approved by the wheat pools of the three prairie provinces at Calgary July 22-23. One resolution declared that "in meeting the additional requirements of the British market for foodstuffs a preference should be available to Empire producers." It added the rapid expansion of grain acreage in western Canada "developed as a direct result of the necessity of providing wheat and breadstuffs to meet the needs of Great Britain and her allies during the Great War."

Similar conditions might arise again, said the resolution which referred to "the right of the British farmer to first place in the home market for agricultural products."

The second resolution urged the Dominion Government to consult representatives of the organized wheat producers of western Canada before any final action was taken in regard to the preference.

Devises Formula In Mathematics For Urge to War

British Association
Notes New Effort For
Problem to Peace

CAMBRIDGE, Eng.—Love, and hate, and the peace and war that grow out of them, were given expression in a mathematical formula, and that formula manipulated to show how peace may be promoted and war avoided, at the meeting here recently of the British Association for the Advancement of Science.

The mathematical manipulator of person-to-person feeling was Dr. L. F. Richardson, F.R.S., principal of Paisley Technical College in Scotland, noted for his researches in the application of mathematics to complex problems like the weather and human behavior.

Reduced to English words, Dr. Richardson's formula starts out with: "The hate of person X divided by time is equal to the hate of another person Y times a constant number." More compactly, in mathematical symbols, it reads $\frac{dx}{dt} = kxy$.

Through mathematical manipulations, Dr. Richardson is brought to the conclusion that: "The traditional policy of the balance of power is now futile, because the balance is unstable." To check the drift toward war and change its direction toward international goodwill and co-operation, two things are possible: Abolish grievances, and decrease threats. "Neither of these actions is instinctive; both would require national efforts of will."

LIQUID HELIUM THINNER THAN WATER
Cold normally makes liquids thicker and more viscous, until at last they solidify. "Slow as molasses in January" is a traditional expression of this fact. Yet one form of liquid helium, which is so cold that a January blizzard seems like a furnace blast by comparison, flows thinner than water. Dr. J. F. Allen of the University of Nebraska told his British colleagues.

This form of helium (designated by the symbol He 2) approaches absolute zero in temperature. Absolute zero is 273 degrees Centigrade below freezing point. He 2 offers so little resistance to stirring or pouring that it resembles a gas in this respect rather than a liquid. Thus far, Dr. Allen stated, no comprehensive theory has been developed to explain all its properties.

HELEN KELLER STARTED WITH STONE AGE MIND

Helen Keller, handicapped by being born a blind deaf mute, started life in the mental state of a Stone Age person in the days before people learned how to communicate ideas by drawing pictures, declared Sir Richard Paget, Bt., noted student of the origin of languages.

Sir Richard has long held that speech began with gestures, that spoken words originated when human beings gestured with lips and tongue as well as with hands and arms.

"The born deaf mute," he said, "naturally expresses only generalized ideas, by a general pantomime. . . . Helen Keller's education only began when she realized that everything had a 'name' which could be spelt in the hand alphabet. Civilization may have begun when man—in Aurignacian times—became an artist, and thus learnt to symbolize the isolated elements of his environment; characteristic hand gestures then produced corresponding mouth gestures, i.e., words."

DAWN OF CIVILIZATION PUSHED BACK

Civilization's dawn—the time when man learned how to systemize food production and live in towns—recedes farther and farther into the mist of years the longer the problem of culture origins is studied, it was indicated in the address of Prof. V. G. Childe, president of the association's section on anthropology.

Recent German excavations in lower Mesopotamia show well-developed town life as far back as 4500 B.C.—long before the invention of writing. And the towns found buried beneath the ancient river plain show every evidence of having been built by peoples already civilized, who apparently migrated into the land from somewhere else, bringing their relatively advanced culture with them.

Evidence also increases, Prof. Childe declared, that there was a continuity of civilizations, with business and cultural contacts between the peoples, during all these uncounted centuries of unrecorded history. Archaeological field but, under the rules, will not be allowed to bat.

Hutton hit 35 fours in his classic innings and was at the wickets more than 13 hours. Joseph Hardstaff, Nottinghamshire pro, came to equalling the second highest score of the innings—187 made yesterday by Maurice Leyland of Yorkshire. When Wally Hammond declared, Hardstaff had made 169 not out, batting faultlessly five and a half hours. He hit one 5 and 20 fours.

STRANGE BOWLING ANALYSIS

Australia's bowlers, flogged mercilessly throughout the three days of the marathon match, returned the strangest bowling an alyse ever seen in test cricket. W. J. O'Reilly in 85 overs captured three wickets for 178 runs. L. Fleetwood-Smith in 87 overs took one for 298. M. G. Waite bowled Compton and finished with an analysis of one for 150, while Sydney Barnes got the remaining wicket for 84.

Hutton's score eclipsed Wally Hammond's 336 against New Zealand at Auckland in the 1932-33 series. It also was 30 runs more than Bradman's record Anglo-Australian test total made at Leeds in 1930.

As a crowd of nearly 38,000 spectators cheered and sang "for he's a jolly good fellow," English and Australian players crowded round Hutton, patting him on the back and shaking hands.

One of the first to congratulate him was Bradman, while Hardstaff, his partner at the wickets, whose lunch total was 96 not out, also ran down the pitch to shake his hand.

When the game was resumed this morning in cool, showery weather, the wicket at the spacious Surrey ground showed no signs of wear.

While Hutton continued to hit confidently Hardstaff was sometimes baffled by O'Reilly's spinning deliveries. The Lanky Aussie bowler was at his best, despite two full days in the field when he and Fleetwood-Smith had borne the main burden of the attack.

Hardstaff sent O'Reilly to the ropes to reach his 50 in 93 minutes, fastest half-century of the match to date.

Awaiting opportunities, Hutton scored chiefly behind the wicket, but his Nottinghamshire partner gave a grand exhibition of stroke play.

CHANGES TEAM
Bradman made a double change with the score at 670. Waite and McCabe bowling instead of O'Reilly and Fleetwood-Smith. At this stage all bowling looked alike to the English batsmen and the rate of scoring quickened. Hutton sent up the 700 after 12 hours' play, with a cut to the boundary.

The spin bowlers were soon brought back, however, and with a boundary through the slips off Fleetwood-Smith, Hutton surpassed Bradman's Anglo-Australian mark of 334. The next ball he swept to the leg boundary to beat Hammond's world test record score of 336.

Hardstaff then made England's total a record for any test with a boundary. But the record-smashing was not finished. A few minutes later Hutton with a single past short-leg created a new English sixth-wicket stand beating the 186 recorded by Wally Hammond and Leslie Ames earlier this year.

The crowd had increased to nearly 30,000 after lunch and off Fleetwood-Smith's fourth ball finds all the way across Europe, from Macedonia to Scandinavia, give indications of these contacts far back into the Late Stone Age. East met west ages upon ages ago.

Hardstaff reached his century against the Aussies.

A few minutes later Hutton's record-smashing innings was brought to a close when he sent an easy catch to Hassett off O'Reilly's bowling. The sixth wicket fell at 770, Hutton scoring 364.

Arthur Wood, Yorkshire wicket-keeper, joined Hardstaff and the tired Aussie bowlers came in for a hammering.

In a desperate effort to dismiss the Englishmen, Bradman took a turn with the ball and Hardstaff was jeered ironically when he failed to score from the invading captain's first over. The 800 went up after 14 hours' play.

The seventh wicket fell at 876. Wood being caught and bowled by Barnes. In his first test match the veteran stumper made 53 runs in 90 minutes, hitting eight fours.

With the score at 887 Bradman again went on to bowl but had only sent down two when he slipped and was carried from the field with a badly sprained ankle.

In the meantime Hedley Verity had joined Hardstaff and at the tea interval Hammond declared with the score at 903 for seven wickets.

The Nottinghamshire player batted without giving a chance for five hours, 30 minutes, hitting a five and 20 fours. Verity scored eight runs.

An insurance salesman should be able to collect his renewal commissions after leaving a company. A salesman now collects commissions for 10 years out of policy premiums but they cease when he leaves a company's employ.

The proposal to allow him to collect them after leaving the company was termed "class law" and "salesmen's legislation" by speakers representing the insurance companies. It would be of benefit to "drifters" without any help to salesmen who were loyal to their companies, it was claimed.

A proposal to stop insurance agents accepting notes personally for premiums raised a discussion.

The suggested change would allow the acceptance of notes made out to the insurance company but not to the agent.

G. Cecil Moore, general manager of Imperial Life, did not agree with the plan. He said that in seeking to remedy an evil that might or might not exist, an even greater evil was suggested that might work to the detriment of companies.

He cited one case of a company in a western city that accepted notes on a million dollars of business but there was a crop failure and all the business lapsed. If notes were made payable to an agent, the agent would be more careful of the risks he took in accepting them.

The question of whether an agent licensed in one province should be able to write business in another brought out differences of opinion.

Speakers for life insurance companies did not think there should be any residence requirement for an agent but suggested an agent going into another province to write business should comply with local license regulations.

Fire and casualty company representatives thought it would be sufficient for him to get his original license endorsed when moving to another province, with out paying any extra fee. Fire and casualty agents took the view that he should have to take out a new license.

The Nottinghamshire player batted without giving a chance for five hours, 30 minutes, hitting a five and 20 fours. Verity scored eight runs.

With the score at 887 Bradman again went on to bowl but had only sent down two when he slipped and was carried from the field with a badly sprained ankle.

In the meantime Hedley Verity had joined Hardstaff and at the tea interval Hammond declared with the score at 903 for seven wickets.

present believed to be out of the question."

The Nonintervention Committee encountered financial difficulties today.

Francis Hemming, secretary of the committee, informed Great Britain, France, Italy and Germany that if they did not pay up their arrears by August 31 he would dismiss all naval and land observers. This would mean the end of effective nonintervention control.

Great Britain and France owe £22,000 ($110,000), each, and Italy and Germany each £37,000. Hemming said he had prepared telegrams ordering the chiefs of the control service in France and at Gibraltar, as well as the head of the naval control, to dismiss their observers.

Soviet Russia has paid no dues since it proclaimed that nonintervention was dead and the Nonintervention Committee useless.

PREMIER TAKES HAND

LONDON (CP Cable)—Prime Minister Chamberlain today took a hand in the tangled Spanish question following a long conference between Viscount Halifax, Foreign Secretary, and the Earl of Plymouth, chairman of the Nonintervention Committee.

The Foreign Secretary walked across Downing Street from the Foreign Office to No. 10 to lay before the Prime Minister informal reports gathered by Lord Plymouth from the diplomatic representatives of France, Italy, Germany, Soviet Russia and Portugal.

Official sources believed it improbable any attempt would be made by Great Britain to negotiate directly with the two Spanish factions as was reported by some quarters in London that would mean scrapping or undermining the Nonintervention Committee to which the British Government is committed.

Mr. Chamberlain was not expected to take control of future negotiations out of the hands of Lord Plymouth Foreign Under-Secretary, and Lord Halifax. The Prime Minister is to leave tomorrow to continue the holiday which eventually will take him back to Scotland.

VANCOUVER (CP)—A new branch of the British Columbia Chamber of Mines has been organized at Port Alberni, on the west coast of Vancouver Island.

President Gordon Campbell of the provincial chamber said the branch had gathered a display of mining samples and is collecting information on new mining discoveries in the district.

Hungary Given Right to Rearm

Military Clauses of Trianon Treaty Abrogated
by Little Entente

BLED, Yugoslavia (AP)—The Little Entente swept away the military clauses of a Great War treaty today and gave Hungary the right to rearm "in the interests of peace."

The three nations—Czechoslovakia, Roumania and Jugoslavia—agreed in a three-day conference to abrogate arms restrictions in the Trianon Treaty and grant military equality to Hungary.

The action followed a similar move by the Balkan Entente, which includes Roumania and Jugoslavia, on July 30 wiping out military clauses of the Treaty of Neuilly which limited Bulgaria's rearmament.

Dr. Milan Stoyadinovich, Premier and Foreign Minister of Jugoslavia, said the principle of an understanding had been reached with Hungary also on bilateral nonaggression pacts and minority problem details which would be negotiated between Hungary and the three nations individually.

Conversations on Danubian navigation, he said, would be discussed in Belgrade "in the fall."

A formal communique expressed satisfaction of improvement of the international situation in Europe, particularly between the Little Entente countries and their neighbors.

The communique contained references to the League of Nations which observers considered slightly critical, but there was no indication the states contemplated a break with the League.

The action of the Little Entente came while the Hungarian regent, Admiral Nicholas Horthy, and other high Hungarian officials were on a visit of state to Germany.

Official Nazi utterances and the German press have given every indication that Chancellor Hitler is seeking to convince Hungary it would be to her advantage to have Germany as one of her best friends.

The Trianon Treaty, to be revised as a result of today's agreement, was signed by the allied and associated powers and Hungary June 4, 1920. Although it recognized Hungary's independence from Austria, the pact long has been a sore spot because it limited Hungary's army to 35,000.

The Balkan Entente states—Greece, Turkey, Roumania and Jugoslavia—on July 30 canceled similar limitations placed upon Bulgaria by the post-war Treaty of Neuilly.

The Trianon Treaty reduced Hungary's population from 10,500,000 to 7,500,000 by ceding territory to Czechoslovakia, Roumania and Jugoslavia. This created minority problems which still have to be settled.

aid. "Then we could work together in meeting the problems involved in the project."

As far as the United States is concerned, the national government has indicated it is favorable to the scheme, he said.

Mr. MacDonald, who is an engineer, said there were no great engineering feats involved in the construction of the Alaska section of the road.

"I have been over the route myself and I would say construction of that part will be simple," he said.

Estimated cost of the entire road was $15,000,000, he said, but this depended on the type of highway required.

To begin with, he said, a gravel road with 32-foot ditches would be sufficient until resources had been developed to warrant a larger road. This type of highway could be built for $6,500 a mile, he declared.

FEW OPPOSED

SEATTLE (AP)—Only a few "old timers" oppose the proposed international highway to Alaska, Louis Johnson, assistant Secretary of War, said after his return from an inspection tour of the United States, "last frontier." Johnson flew east last night in his own plane, headed for Salt Lake City.

He arrived in an army amphibian plane with J. Monroe Johnson, assistant Secretary of Commerce, and Senator Reynolds (D-N.C.), who joined the party at Juneau after a vacation trip in the territory.

Louis Johnson predicted the United States-Alaska highway would be a reality in a short time, and said he would make a personal report on the project to President Roosevelt next week. He said he believed the project would "boom the Pacific Northwest like nothing before."

Louis Johnson and members of the newly-appointed Alaska highway commission, met last night to discuss co-operative efforts between Canada and the United States for making the road a reality.

Shawnigan to Get Flood Protection

Work to be Done to Guard
Low Shoreline Parts of Lake

The low shoreline parts of Shawnigan Lake, where damage has been done to highway, railroad and private property during the winter high-water season, are to be rendered secure from floods in the future.

Ottawa today issued orders for clearing Millstream, which is the outlet of the lake.

Following discussions with the Malahat Board of Trade members, Alan Chambers took the matter up with the departments while he was in Ottawa recently. As a result of representations Mr. Chambers made there, Dominion Government engineers were sent to Shawnigan Lake. There they made a survey and studied the problem personally with the Shawnigan Board members and Mr. Chambers.

Under today's appropriation, $3,000 will be spent at once so that it will be effective before the rainy season begins. On Mr. Chambers' recommendation the work is to be done by day labor, supervised by the provincial Department of Public Works, which will be reimbursed by the federal department.

The normal water level of the lake will not be disturbed, the engineers explained; when the water approaches the danger level it will be drawn off at an accelerated rate.

"We are very much interested in the proposal for British immigration to the province," said Premier Pattullo, this morning. "I intend to take the matter up with Prime Minister King this fall."

"It is a little early to discuss details of such a scheme, but I have suggested a conference of representatives from the Dominion, the province, and the two national railways to work out a plan."

Confession By Kendrick Denied

LONDON (CP Cable)—The Foreign Office today made an emphatic denial to German claims that Capt. Thomas Kendrick confessed to espionage while held by the Gestapo (secret police) for three days at the Hotel Metropole in Vienna.

The former British passport officer in Vienna landed at Croydon airport last night and made contacts with the foreign office, but has not made any report yet on his detention.

Meanwhile, it was learned the German Foreign ministry has sent no details to back up its charge against Capt. Kendrick, and it is unlikely Great Britain will press the matter.

When Capt. Kendrick was first arrested and taken to the hotel, the Gestapo headquarters for the former Austria, the British government demanded a "full and speedy explanation." But now he has been released and is outside of Germany an explanation is not so vital.

To See Pearson On Jobless

VANCOUVER (CP)—Mayor George Miller announced here he would interview Hon. G. S. Pearson, British Columbia Minister of Labor, within the next few days to induce the provincial government to establish a works program for single unemployed who can claim domicile in British Columbia.

The announcement was made after a special civic committee met with jobless representatives and conferred with the minister in Victoria by telephone. The committee said they had failed to arrive at any solution of the problem of single unemployed, reported congregating here in large numbers.

For 27 years, Sir Henry has represented Bournemouth in the House of Commons. He was educated at Shrewsbury and Cambridge, and won honors as an oarsman. He twice won the Thames Cup at Henley.

On leaving Cambridge he enlisted with Lord Lloyd under the banner of Joseph Chamberlain, father of the present Prime Minister of Great Britain.

Councillor Daiglish, who advocated British settlement in Canada when he arrived here some years ago from the Orient, organized the Newcastle-on-Tyne Voluntary Empire Migration Conference. Last year he organized the Guild Hall Empire Migration and Development Conference.

Insurance Agent Full-time Job

Report Before Convention Objects to Part-time Workers in Business

People who write insurance policies should be employed in the business all the time and should not be able to take advantage of their positions to write insurance contracts according to a report presented to the conference of insurance superintendents at the Empress Hotel last night.

The report provoked considerable discussion. No decision was reached and it was arranged to postpone further discussion until next year.

It proposed that in centres over 10,000 population no part-time agents should be licensed, except for a probationary period of a year, and opposed allowing people to sell insurance who could coerce anyone into buying policies because of business reasons or because of occupation.

Appointment of full-time insurance agents was advocated. "Apart from the standpoint of coercing or controlling business any part time agent should be of a type who will actively canvass for business in the field and provide service to the public," the report said.

Married women would be prevented from taking out insurance licenses if their husbands were ineligible under another proposal, this being desired to stop a man whose license had been canceled from working in his wife's name.

The question of commission for insurance agents was raised at the conference in connection with proposals for establishing a uniform resident agent's law throughout Canada.

Walter H. Bennett, general counsel of the National Association of U. S. insurance agents maintained in this connection that an insurance agent had no right to commission unless he earned it. The resident agent's law, he claimed, was of benefit to the public, not the agent, because the resident agent's service was to the man who bought the policy. The agent's duty did not end at the signing of the policy, but went on during the life of the contract.

He opposed the fixing by law of the commission to be paid an agent which, he said, was a matter of contract. The companies were able to look after themselves in this respect and so were the agents.

The resident agent's law would require a resident agent in each province to handle a policy rather than an agent from another province.

Dealing with a report on fire insurance legislation, the convention heard opposition to a proposal contracts on mercantile and manufacturing risks be written by other than mutual companies.

In most provinces three-year contracts can be written on everything but these two risks and the suggested amendment would remove the limitation.

W. E. Baldwin, president of the All-Canadian Insurance Federation, said it was necessary to review mercantile and manufacturing risks each year.

Representatives of other insurance groups said a change now would demoralize the business considerably, and might mean a competitive lowering of rates that would affect the companies' reserves.

Arthur E. Fisher, superintendent of insurance for Saskatchewan, pointed out the removal of the limitation would be permissible only and would not force companies to write three-year contracts. Mr. Baldwin said once it was allowed it would be done because of the competition and there was no telling how far it would go.

The conference had a brief from the Canadian Manufacturers' Association urging the limitation be removed, but R. E. P. Smiley, representing the Toronto Board of Trade, said his organization would prefer to leave the limit as it was.

Decisive Victory Or Revolution

German Military Adviser to China Figures Japan Trouble Within 18 Months

COLOMBO, Ceylon (CP Havas)—Major Lindemann, one of the German military advisers to Chinese General Chiang Kai-shek recalled by Berlin, yesterday predicted a revolution will break out in Japan within the next 18 months unless Japanese troops score a decisive victory in China.

The German strategist said the Japanese invasion of China was similar to the ill-starred Russian campaign of Napoleon and would meet the same fate.

Coal Drillers Strike Oil

Discovery Causes Excitement in Nova Scotia Town

INVERNESS, N.S. (CP)—Drillers seeking new submarine coal seams near this Cape Breton mining town have struck oil, and excitement ran high as colliers awaited for more information from experts.

Hon. Michael Dwyer, Minister of Mines, and Deputy Minister Alan Cameron confirmed reports oil had been found in a coarse sandstone formation when a drill penetrated 233 feet horizontally on the west diagonal level of N. 9 colliery, but cautioned against too much optimism. The oil was discovered 2,200 feet under sea level and nearly two miles from the mainland.

The drillers encountered the "driples" of oil last Saturday and a sufficient amount was recovered for samples before the hole was plugged up. Mine Manager Simpson expressed the belief the "driples" was definitely petroleum and the Deputy Minister of Mines said the structure of the colliery was "all right" for oil.

While oil shale was known to exist in Nova Scotia, flowing oil had never been reported before. Water had been found with the oil and there was no evidence of gas. Latest reports said the flow of oil had stopped.

The nearest flowing oil field was in Albert County, New Brunswick.

City Studies Its Relief Bill

Government's Claim for $54,294 Referred to Relief Committee

The City Council referred to its relief committee a letter from the provincial relief administrator containing a claim from the federal government for the refunding of $54,294.10 allegedly "improperly shared" in the distribution of relief in the city from September 22, 1930, to March 31, 1936, when the claim was read at yesterday's council session.

Victoria was billed as the result of investigations undertaken by the auditor-general's department two years ago.

"It's really a bill from the federal government to the provincial government and the latter has just passed on to the city this amount," Alderman S. H. Okell, relief chairman stated as he suggested the claim be sent to his committee for study with the city comptroller and solicitor.

"Admit no liability," counseled Alderman John A. Worthington as that course was taken.

Alderman Alex Peden, chairman of the committee some years ago, remarked upon the peculiarity of the billing, noting it was presented years late and after several changes in provincial, federal and municipal governments. Payments during the years for which the rebate is claimed were authorized at the time the accounts were presented, he said.

STATE CLAIM

The report covering the account was sent to the city with a letter from E. W. Griffith, provincial relief administrator. "It will be noted that the Dominion Government request that a refund of $54,294.10 be obtained covering federal contributions to unemployment relief expenditures that were improperly shared. In addition to this, they ask that refunds be made in connection with unascertained adjustments," the letter stated in part.

It continued with a request that the city examine the report as soon as possible, "arrange for the necessary adjustments through the provincial government, or alternatively furnish details of any specific items mentioned in the report that you consider were proper expenditures under the terms of the various agreements."

No part of the Dominion Government's claim for nearly $1,000,000 from the British Columbia Government and municipalities in the province on old relief accounts has yet been passed on to Victoria's three suburban municipalities.

Under the Dominion's interpretation of unemployment relief as granted from 1930 on it is claimed that certain salaries booked under the relief account should have been wholly borne by the municipalities.

Saanich officials said this morning they understood this to mean salaries of strawbosses and foremen who were employed to take charge of relief gangs. The municipality claims these were not classifiable as permanent staff since they were taken on for relief work.

Neither Oak Bay nor Esquimalt believe they can be liable for any part of the claim. It was stated at both municipal halls this morning the municipalities had adhered closely to the regulations covering relief work, and in no case had paid salaries to other than purely relief workers.

Bodies of Plane Victims Recovered

LAKE TOWN, Utah (AP)—Bodies of two men killed in an airplane crash 14 miles southwest of this Utah-Idaho border town were found yesterday.

The victims were Riley Hess, 28, and Jack A. Harris, 25, both of Ogden, Utah.

The two left Fish Haven, a Bear Lake resort, Sunday afternoon. When they failed to arrive at Ogden a search was started. Arthur Nortensen, Ogden pilot, located the wreckage from the air. He landed and organized a searching party.

More People To Give Security

Sir Henry Page Croft Addresses Vancouver Board of Trade

VANCOUVER (CP)—Sir Henry Page Croft yesterday recommended an immediate increase in British Columbia's white population—preferably through immigration from the British Isles—to provide Canada with security from attack on the Pacific Coast.

The British parliamentarian, who arrived here from Prince Rupert yesterday after a tour of interior British Columbia studying immigration possibilities, in an address to Vancouver Board of Trade, said:

"If nature had placed your great province with its present population, a separate land, far out in the Pacific, divorced from Canada and outside the British Empire, away from the shield of the Royal Navy, what would have been your fate?" he asked.

"But is it not equally true that your immense territory today so thinly occupied is a temptation to hungry nations, a glittering prize to those who, in a world conflagration, might cast their envious eyes upon so fair a land?"

"I believe, therefore, as a friend from the Old Land, that you should seek white population and seek it quickly. More especially, I hope it may not be too late to secure a reinforcement from the Old Country. This will prove your real insurance and will give you a security here on your great Pacific seaboard which you can hardly feel today."

"Your strength is our strength, your happiness means much to us, let us co-operate in order that we may gain peace through strength and unity."

Sir Henry said he had studied outstanding possibilities of development in Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa and the Colonial empire, but of all of them Canada in particular seemed to offer the "greatest opportunities."

"This wonderful great area of British Columbia is foremost in hope if we can jointly bend our wills to the great purpose I have indicated," he said, after suggesting assisted British immigration into the province.

"If the development of great natural resources of the Empire is neglected, if our lands are not occupied, will the virile martial races of the world be content for all time if we sit on a quarter of the earth's surface and do nothing to open it up for the service of mankind," he said.

"In this great brotherhood of dominions, we have a great surplus population cribbed, congested and confined in the Old Land. We have vast areas fit for development and settlement, we have great reserves of capital."

"Surely the time has come when British people should find an opening in British lands and British capital harnessed to the development of all our latent wealth."

Big Development in Great Bear Area

TORONTO (CP)—Extensive development of the Great Bear Lake area by Bear Exploration and Radium Limited was forecast today by Thomas F. Lee, president, at the company's annual meeting. In addition, mill installations will be made to reduce ore to near-bullion so shipment may take place weekly or monthly by plane.

Current assets were shown at $219,945, made up of $9,294 cash held in trust for the company, $62,013 in cash received after June 30, $95,000 due from firm underwriting of 267,667 shares at present held in trust for the company, $14,000 in concentrate at the mine, $38,000 supplies and $1,541 insurance premiums unexpired. Liabilities of $47,734 include a $12,000 bank loan, $32,311 accounts and bills payable and $3,204 accrued salaries and wages.

Insurgents Held On Ebro Front

HENDAYE, France (AP)—The Spanish government reported today its defence lines were holding firmly against the main force of an insurgent attack concentrated on a four-mile sector on the Ebro front.

Government dispatches said the militiamen still were strongly entrenched in front of Villalba, strategic communications centre northwest of Gandesa, which has borne the brunt of insurgent attacks since early Saturday.

From descriptions of the intensity of the fighting, it appeared the long-awaited offensive of General Franco was under way.

Insurgent advances from Zaragoza, however, said that while operations in the Gandesa sector had passed beyond the preliminary stage of rectification of lines they were not yet "an offensive properly so-called."

Gardiner To Study Charges

VANCOUVER (CP)—Hon. J. G. Gardiner, federal Minister of Agriculture, said yesterday he would visit the Okanagan Valley to make a "first hand study" of allegations that a combine existed in marketing of British Columbia fruits and vegetables.

Last week at Vernon, B.C., a meeting of growers adopted a resolution calling for investigation by provincial and Dominion authorities of the alleged combine.

Looking at the Future

TEN THOUSAND BRITISH FAMILIES to settle in British Columbia! Twenty-five million dollars to start this new migrant army on its way from Great Britain! This, in short, is the scheme which Sir Henry Page Croft, member of the British House of Commons for the famous south coast health resort of Bournemouth for the last 20 years, has come to Canada to discuss with the people and government of this province.

Always in the back of our minds when the subject of immigration is under consideration is the problem of Canada's unemployed workers. There is in consequence a natural disposition to fight shy of any proposal which has for its object the acquisition of new people who must of necessity work in order to maintain themselves. Sir Henry, however, has come to British Columbia armed with most of the answers that will be expected by those in authority—interested persons and organizations—who will ask him all sorts of questions.

The main question then is: Can British Columbia try to absorb these 10,000 British families of which Sir Henry speaks? He answers it this way: "If we could land in British Columbia 10,000 settlers, with adequate capital to sustain them over two years and to build their homes, barns and cowsheds, there would immediately arise a great demand for lumber, for labor in clearance, for stock—20,000 horses, 50,000 cows and cattle, 10,000 sows and 100,000 poultry, for road making, for fencing, for furniture, for machines, at least 20,000, and implements and all the hundred and one articles necessary for civilized life."

It is axiomatic, of course, that the greater this province's self-sustaining rural population becomes the larger will grow the demand for the products of our industrial establishments. Sir Henry has explained: "We are convinced that for each family settled on the land permanent employment will be found for one of your unemployed in secondary industries, in transport, or in all those categories which supply the needs of the agriculturist. During the actual process of settlement it is obvious that each settler will give employment to great additional labor for his immediate requirements."

Square pegs in round holes dot the history of Canada's immigration experience since the beginning of the present century. It could not be otherwise. Adaptability and inclination undergo the severest tests when the settler gets right down to Nature's bedrock. The time has gone by when a would-be farmer could consider life on a quarter section of virgin land as a short cut to a competence. At this stage he must approach his future environment, and everything he does in that environment for a few years, on the understanding that if he is able to feed and clothe himself and his family he has done well. And he has done well; for this reason: He has established for his family a living standard in healthful surroundings—even though he may not count many of the amenities to which he had been accustomed—under which he is able to put the thumb of scorn to the nose of derision when one of the periodic "recessions" assails the country or the world in general. But to take up land with the sole idea of making a profit as soon as production is feasible is to nurse a delusion—and a snare. Hence, it is necessary that all applicants for participation in this or any other migration proposal must be told in plain language what awaits them, that hard work and plenty of it is to be their lot for several years.

In spite of all the "ifs" and "buts" in a scheme such as that which Sir Henry Page Croft so eloquently advocates for British Columbia it is one which commands the most earnest consideration and analysis. It will not do to dismiss it as just another grandiose settlement dream; far from it. Economic conditions the world over are in a muddled state. Never in the history of this country—and especially in the history of British Columbia—were more courageous policies more necessary than they are at the present time. The distinguished visitor who is in Victoria today has one of that type.

England's Two New Records

WIELDERS OF THE WILLOW IN VICTORIA today will read of England's present stand in the final test match of the present series with unbounded interest. Never before in the history of this great cricket classic have 900 runs in a single innings ever been piled up. The best previous mark was established by the Australians at Lord's in 1930, but that was 174 short of today's declared total, for seven wickets, at 903. Not only will a new team scoring record now go down to history, but also a new individual performance remains to inspire all present and future batsmen. Twenty-two-year-old Leonard Hutton of Yorkshire is the latest sensation. A simple catch sent him to the Oval's ample pavilion with 364 runs to his credit in the scoring book. Thus have Bradman's 334 and Hammond's 336—former records—passed to the limbo. And, although Australia will still retain the mythical "Ashes," this latest international test match gives England two records, which, by no means unobtainable, may stand for many years to come.

Prophetic Words

IT IS AN ADMIRABLE THING COMING events cast their shadows before. We are reminded of its truth in a speech Viscount Cecil of Chelwood delivered recently. He quoted some words his father, Lord Salisbury, when Prime Minister of Great Britain, used in a discussion of what then was known as the "Concert of Europe." They were:

"Remember this—that the federation of Europe is the only possible structure of Europe which can save civilization from the desolating effects of a disastrous war. You notice that on all sides the instruments of destruction, the piling up of arms, are becoming larger and larger, the powers of concentration are becoming greater, the instruments of death more active and more numerous and are improved with every year, and each nation is bound for its own safety's sake to take part in this competition."

"These are the things which are done, so to speak, on the side of war. The one hope that we have to prevent this competition from ending in a terrible effort of mutual destruction which will be fatal to Christian civilization—the one hope we have is that the powers may be gradually brought together to act in a friendly spirit on all questions of difference which may arise until at last they shall be welded in some international construction which will give to the world as a result of their great strength a long spell of untroubled and prosperous trade and continued peace."

Lord Salisbury gave voice to the foregoing sentiments and opinions in the waning days of the last century. Twenty years afterward, in 1914, the dire things of which he was apprehensive actually happened. The League of Nations—which came too late—was "the one hope" he prescribed; collective security he obviously had in mind. But the "long spell of untroubled and prosperous trade and continued peace" will be realized only when other nations copy Canadian and United States methods of settling disputes and living in harmony side by side.

Confusing Mere Man

OFTEN WE FEEL IT IS NOT WORTH the trouble to look too closely at the future, even the immediate future, when that appears to be as clear as crystal. The risk we run of becoming desperate is too great and as often as not what appears to be as clear as crystal is not so at all.

Particularly is this the case in the matter of women's styles. What appears to be the logical conclusion of a trend rarely eventuates that way. According to the fashion previews, the trend toward the evening gown in nightdresses and the trend toward the nightdress in evening gowns are holding their own, but on top of that trend come pyjamas that look not like pyjamas, but like evening gowns that look like nightdresses.

Logically we would be justified in forecasting the next step to be evening gowns that look exactly like pyjamas, that do not look at all like evening gowns. That would be the final step to plunging the slow-witted male into a confusion from which he might never emerge. The social blunders inherent in such a situation are too appalling to think about.

BEHIND THE PALESTINIAN RIOTS

From New York Post

To what extent are the troubles in Palestine due to Italian and German intervention behind the scenes? The question is raised and in part, at least, answered by the Week of London.

Italian propaganda in the Near East against British rule is an old story, but the Week claims that Rome's efforts to increase unrest are being intensified in the hope of forcing the British to ratify the Anglo-Italian pact without waiting for withdrawal of troops from Spain, as provided in the document itself.

A strange angle of the situation is the existence on the Jewish side of the Palestine dispute of a tiny but troublesome minority group known as the "Revisionists," whose nationalistic aims and social outlook are similar to those of the Fascists. It was one of their number who was executed recently for firing at a busload of Arabs. The Week says that "terrorist bands of both people (Jewish and Arab) are being financed from Rome and Berlin." The Week declares:

"A curious feature of the situation is that both the Italians and Germans are now openly—though not yet in print—boasting of their achievements, in a manner somewhat reminiscent of their early whispered boasts of doings in Spain. The Italians, for instance, now frankly assert that the success of certain groups of Jewish terrorists in Palestine is due to the fact (they say) that the Italian government placed at the disposal of a certain well-known Revisionist organization a training ship."

Palestine is part of the British Empire, in fact if not in theory. Aside from a mild protest against anti-British propaganda in Arabic from the Italian radio station at Bari, Chamberlain prefers to shut his eyes to what is going on—another example of the ostrichism he calls realism.

Political Trouble Brewing In the Maritimes

By NORMAN M. MacLEOD OTTAWA

RECENT DEVELOPMENTS down where the Atlantic surf bombards the Nova Scotia coastline have jolted old-line party interests on Parliament Hill out of their apathy and into studying the highly disconcerting possibility that Maritime discontent may be on the point of abandoning hope of securing redress from either Liberal or Conservative sources and getting ready to do business in a big way with the C.C.F.

The first move in such a direction is the decision which the United Mine Workers took by an almost unanimous vote the other night at their Halifax conference to affiliate with the C.C.F. for political action. The mine workers constitute the most important labor body in the Maritimes. Since they incorporated in their decision a project for enlisting the co-operation of the steel workers, the fishermen, the farmers, and the rapidly-spreading co-operative movement, their action is recognized in federal circles as one which may very well set the Maritime political heather on fire. The C.C.F. national headquarters, for their part, have not been slow to recognize a turn in the wheel of political fortune which gives them a real chance in an area of the country in which they have hitherto not been a decisive factor, and a mission is being organized for an early visit to the eastern provinces, with a view to co-operating with the mine workers and other groups.

WHILE HIGHLY DISTURBED over the outlook, old-line party circles in Ottawa are not really surprised by the development. It is recognized that a political protest movement from Maritime primary producers was long overdue, and the circumstance at which Parliament Hill has marvelled for some time, past has been the fact that Maritime patience has endured so long.

Generally, the situation has been that governments, largely regardless of which political party happened to be in power, have been content to stand on the sidelines and watch unorganized primary producers, their standard of living always precariously near the starvation level, waging an unequal struggle against strongly entrenched interests.

The fishermen have been in a particularly distressing situation. This correspondent recently paid a visit to one of the Nova Scotia shores and talked with them in their homes and at their work. In upwards of a score of interviews the nearest approach to a success story which he was told was of a boat crew of four men who, in the previous week's fishing, had netted a total of $12-$3 each for a week of arduous, dangerous toil and exposure. That was along the comparatively well-off shore of West Jeddore. Off Grand Desert, where results had not been so good, a boat crew of four reported total net earnings since April first of $10-$250 per month, or at the rate of about 50 cents per month after paying for their gear and supplies.

THE REASONS the fishermen advance for their difficulties are ones which political action could cure. In the first place, the blame is laid upon the steam trawlers, which the large fishing companies operate under license from the federal government. These mechanized, mass-production fishing units land 70 per cent of the catch which the fish-distributing companies handle. They consequently make these concerns independent of the catch of the shore fishermen. The latter can take the price which the fish companies offer them—or allow their catch to rot. They have no bargaining power.

THE COAL AND STEEL workers, for their part, nurse grievances just as deep-seated as those of the fishermen. When the Nova Scotia Steel and Coal Company was in liquidation recently, for instance, the company's miners were induced to take a 25 per cent cut in wages on the pretext that a united effort was necessary to save the industry—and on further assurance that the liquidators were volunteering their services out of motives of disinterested public service. Subsequent proceedings in the Nova Scotia Supreme Court revealed that the liquidators had been paid $70,000 and were claiming another $150,000 or $220,000 in all. In the same proceedings the payment of executive salaries of $100,000 and $75,000 per year to Dominion Steel and Coal executives, who were administering the Nova Scotia Steel and Coal properties, were revealed.

In brief, those on Parliament Hill who know anything of Maritime conditions first-hand realize that the ground is ripe there for a protest political movement against the old-line parties. And last night's initial move in such a direction by the United Mine Workers—the most important labor organization in the Maritime provinces—is recognized as conceivably the most important development in Maritime politics since the general election of 1935. It is beginning to look as though the hand of the hand-writing was on the wall for the Maritime M.P.'s, who have been more intent upon rendering support to the administration than to securing action upon the economic disabilities which burden the Maritime people.

PROGRESS OF CIVILIZATION

From a Canadian Press dispatch from Hastings, England:

"E. G. Hicks, Labor Member of Parliament for Woolwich East and president of the National Federation of Building Trades, told the federation that the refusal of insurance companies to cover the risk of damages to homes by enemy aircraft was causing a serious rise in unemployment."

"The insurance companies' attitude," Mr. Hicks said, "was seriously affecting the construction of houses for sale."

Apparently the thrifty British citizen would rather have a rented than an owned house fall on him.

"Look Ahead." Do not waste time by continually going back to measure the ground you have traveled over.—Faber.

Canada's Fisheries

THE VALUE of production of the commercial fisheries of Canada in 1937 amounted to $38,976,294, compared with $39,165,055 in 1936. These values are for the fish as marketed, whether sold for consumption fresh, or canned, cured or otherwise prepared. The principal kinds of fish (those with an individual value or production of one million dollars or over) are, in order of value: salmon, lobster, cod, herring, whitefish, halibut, sardine, haddock, pickerel and trout. Chief of these is the salmon with a value in 1937 of $12,370,219, of which 96 per cent is credited to the British Columbia output. Compared with the preceding year, the salmon fishery shows a decrease in quantity of catch of 305,491 cwt. and a decrease in market value of $1,497,294. Lobster and cod are second and third respectively, the former with a value of $4,633,429, and the latter with $3,140,230.

British Columbia, by reason of its salmon fishery, is first among the provinces in order of value of product, and is followed by Nova Scotia with its important lobster and cod fisheries. The value of output of the British Columbia fisheries in 1937 was $16,155,439, or 41 per cent of the total for Canada, and the value of the Nova Scotia fisheries was $9,229,834, or 24 per cent of the total. New Brunswick is third in order of value, and Ontario is not far behind.

During the last 12 months it may be safely assumed that approximately 90 per cent of the Hongkong trade in fresh apples has been controlled by United States shippers, writes V. E. Duclos, Canadian Trade Commissioner at Hongkong, in the current issue of the Commercial Intelligence Journal. It is explained, however, that owing to the lack of separate statistics for fresh apples an estimate only can be given as to the volume of trade in this commodity. Imports have been placed at from 40,000 to 50,000 cases valued at from Can. $85,000 to Can. $110,000.

The volume of business done in Canadian apples to Hongkong has never been large, owing to the advantage in prices enjoyed by the United States product. Invariably Canadian quotations have been 10 to 15 cents per case above those of American suppliers, whose brands are long established and well known in the Hongkong market. Provided Canadian shippers are in a position to quote competitively to this market throughout the season, there are good prospects of creating a regular demand for Canadian apples.

SHIP OF THE FUTURE

In the last of his series of articles on the evolution of water transport in The P.L.A. Monthly, Mr. W. J. Bassett-Lowke, the well-known maker of models, describes the ship of the future.

A French authority recently stated that the threat of transoceanic air travel makes it necessary to tackle shipbuilding from a new angle. The ship can never compete with the air liner in speed, but it can offer its passengers comfort, safety, cuisine, freedom, amusement and rest to a far greater degree. These things must, therefore, be exploited to the full.

"Streamlining is an essential part of the design of the ship of the future. The decks are glass-enclosed as well as to protect passengers from the breath of the sea. Indeed, it is possible that only conditioned air will be used throughout the ship except in the outside cabins. Funnels are the greatest difficulty in preventing perfect streamlining, and in this ship the uptakes are run into horizontal tunnels and, with parallel or adjoining tunnels, help to ventilate the entire ship."

TOPPERS LACKING

From Soo Daily Star

One of the problems facing the Sault Old School Boys' Club in carrying out their plans for the region next month is the paucity of silk hats in the Sault. The club is planning, as one of its entertainment features, a Klondyke saloon, in which an attempt will be made to recapture something of the trail of '98. But to do that properly it will be necessary to fit out a good proportion of those taking part in silk hats, frock coats, handkerchiefs, and so on. The moustaches are easy, but as for silk toppers! That is something else again.

TO BRUCE ON VACATION

To the Editor:—Might I make so bold as to inquire, as one who was more or less born on one of your writing tables so to speak, if any of you gentlemen have seen anything of Bruce Hutchison lately.

The lady next door who is my greatest friend, says that he has taken up the name of Bob Davis and I say it is a downright and malicious lie. If that there Bob Davis is really our Bruce I say he must have gone out of his mind. I would sooner have one Loose Ends any day of the week than three times as much of what Bob Davis reveals.

And so would my boy Joe the plumber, and the lady at the house where we read the paper after her husband has borrowed it from the office, she says almost the same words. Only more refined like. She used to work in a tea shop before she got married.

Hoping that this finds you as it leaves me at present.

NOTHING BUT LOSSES

Raskob sold stocks to Pierre DuPont, losing $4,000,000, while DuPont was selling stocks to Raskob, losing $3,000,000. The Board of Tax Appeals thinks this was just in fun, to reduce taxes. If it wasn't, that Raskob and DuPont ought never to have any more dealings with those two sharps, DuPont and Raskob.

City Council Briefs

The City Council yesterday approved a resolution from the British Columbia Provincial Association of Firefighters calling for the establishment of two-platoon system for all provincial firemen. The letter from the association sought the city's support for the resolution at the coming session of the Union of British Columbia Municipalities. Alderman R. A. C. Dewar moved the city endorse the plan, stating the city's own department was run on the two-platoon system and adding that the time was past when firemen should have to work 24 hours. His stand was approved by Alderman Alex Peden and Alderman Archie Willis before the vote was taken.

A request for action by the city to protect the shores and bathing facilities at Beaver Lake from fouling by swans, made by Norman Whitaker, K.C., was referred to the Victoria-Saanich beaches and parks committee.

Thanks of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Newberry for the congratulations and floral tribute extended to them on their 50th wedding anniversary was voiced in a letter read at the meeting.

As the result of a protest made by Charles Williams against the construction of a private school gymnasium at the back of premises at 1024 Richmond Road, the council referred the entire issue to the lands committee and the city solicitor for a report.

Letters from D'Arcy Martin and Cecil French, advocating the drafting of an anti-noise by-law similar to that passed in Vancouver, were referred to the public works committee for a report.

A suggestion to paint parking zones in certain downtown areas as an alternative to using parking meters was turned over to the public works and police commission for consideration.

Permission was granted Wilson & Cabell to erect a sign atop the building at 826 Yates Street; authority was given Sylvester U-Drive Limited to install gasoline tanks at the rear of 720 Broughton Street, and approval was granted to interests advertising the coming race meet at the Willows to string a street banner across Menzies Street.

Sale of three properties recommended by the lands committee was approved. One lot on the east side of Roseberry between Haultain and Kings went for $100, on the provision the purchaser would build; a second on the north of Pembroke between Blanshard and Quadra for $200.

School-by-mail Dinner

Provincial Government Host to International Conference Delegates

Delegates from several countries attending the first international conference on correspondence education were the guests of the provincial Department of Education at a dinner in the Empress Hotel ballroom last night.

J. W. Gibson, director of high school correspondence instruction with the department and organizing secretary of the conference, was chairman and introduced leading educationists of a number of Canadian provinces, the United States and New Zealand, who proposed and answered the long lists of toasts.

Professor John Matheson, dean of the faculty of arts at Queen's University, Ontario, proposing the toast to "Our American Neighbors," said they were just the kind of people Canada liked to have next door, and went on to speak of the almost intangible boundary between the United States and Canada with the observation that there was no customs duty on goodwill, neighborliness and friendly feeling. He admired the willingness of the people of the United States to experiment, even in the field of education, which was notoriously conservative.

Replying, Anthony E. Karnes, Commissioner of Education at Juneau, Alaska, said: "All I ask you to do is to go back and read President Roosevelt's speech last week," referring to the President's declaration of U.S.-Canadian solidarity at Queen's University. He went on to speak of correspondence education as one of the many common causes uniting the two countries. To have common grounds and to be well acquainted with each other were the secrets of peace between nations, he said.

TOAST TO DOMINION

Miss Ruth Reardon, superintendent of public instruction of the State of Montana, moved the toast to "The Dominion of Canada" in poetic language, speaking of the common heritage of the two countries which were founded as one nation, were separated and now were being drawn irresistibly together again. "I come to you not as an alien to foreign soil, but as an American cousin visiting a near relation nurtured by a common ancestry," she said.

Hon. Cyrille Delage, C.M.G., Commander of the Order of Pius IX and Chevalier of the Legion of Honor, superintendent of education of the Province of Quebec, was so moved by her words that he broke into his native French to answer her. Then he went on to tell the delegates of the beauty, historical traditions and pride of his province, saying Quebec was not afraid of progress nor in different to movement in other parts of Canada, but strongly resented any attempt to encroach on the privileges of dual language, tradition and religion, which it desired to preserve intact.

DEPARTMENT PRAISED

A strong tribute to the tireless and effective work of the British Columbia Department of Education was paid by Dr. K. O. Broady, professor of school administration at the University of Nebraska, in moving the toast to the department. He praised its successful effort to bring the benefits of education to every boy and girl in the province and complimented Mr. Gibson and his staff on their meticulous work in preparing for the conference.

Hon. G. M. Weir, Minister of Education, answered that the province had the most progressive school men and women in the Dominion. He enumerated steps forward made in recent years in the fields of curriculum revision, normal school standards, technical and vocational training, larger administrative units, use of the radio, adult education and particularly physical and recreational education. "We have big ideas and not always enough money to carry them out. But we are putting them into effect as fast as we can," he said.

SOUTHERN CROSS LANDS

The work of the Australasian countries in the field of correspondence education was praised by Dr. L. S. Klinek, president of the University of British Columbia, in moving the toast to "The Lands of the Southern Cross." He spoke also of New Zealand's progress in government and social service.

Dr. A. G. Butchers, headmaster of the New Zealand Correspondence School, in reply spoke of the almost nonexistent boundary between Canada and the United States and of his realization of the common interests and ideals of the two countries.

American class 1 railways installed 1,118,388 new freight cars during the past 14 years.

New Zealand Speaker Discusses Social Problem Of Correspondence School

"This new type of school may be said to be contributing in a manner somewhat similar to the motor car, the radio and the ordinary consolidated school to the amelioration of the lot of the rural population," the first international conference on correspondence education was told at a dinner in the Empress Hotel last night by A. G. Butchers, headmaster of the New Zealand Correspondence School.

Dr. Butchers' address was devoted chiefly to the social aspects of correspondence teaching—to means of making the school-by-mail a school in the fullest sense of the word.

In a scholarly analysis of the problems of the correspondence school and the methods taken in his country to offset them, he found the chief duty of the school was to create for its pupils, despite its disabilities, an institution providing true education in the sense of the individual development of the pupil's life and character by contact with outside problems and personalities. The chief disadvantages of the school-by-mail were the absence of daily face-to-face contacts of the pupil with his teachers and the lack of the more serious effects of the character-building effects of the rivalries, friendships and interplay of personalities in the classroom and the contacts provided by group activities both in the classroom and on the playing field.

Other disadvantages had to do with the oral teaching of languages and the physical equipment of classroom and laboratory.

HAS COMPENSATION

But the correspondence school, he said, had compensating advantages in the complete individuality of the teaching, adapted to each pupil's own needs; the possibility of faster progress for brilliant children; the absence of inferiority complex on the part of slower pupils; the preservation of the home entity; the greater chance for specialization by teachers in their best subjects; the better chance of discovering special aptitudes on the part of the student; the complete logical form of written teaching, as opposed to the uncoordinated English of the classroom, and from the point of view of health in the absence of long walks to school in wet weather and exposure to infection.

"There is even something to be said for the absence of the teacher, whose continuous presence and voice are apt to overwhelm the classroom pupil," he said. "There is not enough quiet in the ordinary school, not enough time for reflection and thought."

SOCIAL FACILITIES

As further compensations the New Zealand correspondence school provided a number of facilities of a social nature.

Those listed by Dr. Butchers included a circulating library, an annual magazine with contributions by pupils, a monthly circular discussing the activities of the school and the progress of pupils, correspondence classes for Boy Scouts and Girl Guides, a pen friendship club with international connections, League of Nations Union, Junior Red Cross and Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals groups, stamp collecting, model building and naturalists' clubs, a gardening circle, a savings bank system, an ex-pupils' association and a strong parents' association with access to the minister of education.

In addition visits by pupils to the cities, exhibition of work, short courses in school buildings, meetings in connection with agricultural shows, circuit visits by teachers and special broadcasts were used to bring the pupil into contact with teachers and other pupils.

In the organization of the school stress was placed on positive and encouraging correction of work, and an effort was made to prevent parents from supervising the children's work so as to permit the fullest understanding of the pupil's abilities on the part of the teacher.

Underwriter At Gyros' Luncheon

In speaking at the regular luncheon meeting of the Gyro Club yesterday at the Empress Hotel, A. Gordon Nairn, field supervisor of the Canadian Life Underwriters' Association, formerly of Montreal and now of Toronto, said that the lack of formality in Gyro club meetings was the most effective thing in his estimation in fulfilling the ends of the association.

The subject of his address was: "How Gyro Looks to an Outsider." The talk was carried out in a formal and humorous manner.

The speaker said that he had attended many Gyro functions and had been struck by the friendly atmosphere and the feeling of good fellowship in such affairs.

Some organizations were too formal, but this was not so in Gyro clubs. The idea of living better together was more forcefully brought out.

The speaker was introduced by Bill Hudson. Everett Taylor, president, was in the chair.

Vancouver Plans Year's Big Show

Canada Pacific Exhibition Will Open August 29 on Mainland

When the curtain rises on the 38th annual Canada Pacific Exhibition in Vancouver on August 29 it will reveal the most comprehensive picture of natural resources, agricultural interests, manufactured products, hobby activities and entertainment ever assembled for a western Canada audience.

Heralding the seven-day exhibition will be a colorful cavalcade of nearly 100 elaborate floats, 16 bands, trim marching units and distinguished visitors—the Parade of Progress, which will follow a route gaily marked with strings of colored lights, flags and banners.

Hon. James G. Gardiner, federal minister of agriculture, will officiate at the opening ceremonies, which will be attended by other specially invited guests, including the mayors and Reeves of neighboring cities and municipalities.

Every district of British Columbia, the prairie provinces and various eastern and United States points will be represented in the different departments. Special features include the cat, dog, cage birds and rabbit shows, Indian exhibit, natural history, aviation exhibit and demonstration, first annual exhibition of amateur photography, stamp collections and the first showing of light horses and harness class for heavy horses in many years on the evenings of August 31 and September 1, when judges will include Mrs. A. D. McRae, Lieut. Col. George M. Endicott and Norman Drysdale.

Takes New City Bonds

The provincial government yesterday surrendered old City of Victoria bonds to the Bank of Montreal for exchange for new issue printed following passage of the city's refunding legislation. Approximately 100 bonds were included in the parcel surrendered by the government. They represented a total of about $195,700.

Civic officials declined to comment on the action of the province in conforming to the requirements under the Refunding Act, but in certain circles it was thought the change by so responsible an authority would greatly accelerate transfers. Exchanges had been retarded to a certain extent by the suggestion of the bondholders' committee that no bonds be surrendered until all litigation over the Refunding Act had been completed.

Queen Influences Fashions For Autumn

Glengarry Beret Evolved and Tartans Popular

LONDON—News of the fashions Paris designers decree for the autumn has started to pour across the Channel with the opening of the great autumn dress shows.

In the hottest weather of the year so far, buyers and fashion representatives from all over the world have been watching mannequins in show after show display heavy high-collared coats, tweed capes and furs.

QUEEN'S INFLUENCE

Designers have been greatly influenced by the royal visit to France. Particularly they have borne in mind that the Queen they so much admired is Scottish. Hats reflect the Scottish inspiration in a variety of ways.

One designer has several elaborate interpretations of the Glengarry bonnet, and has evolved a new beret modeled on the tam o' shanter with a lengthy quill at the side. This house also has an original tartan felt, crossed and re-crossed with narrow strips of felt and gaily colored chenille, giving the impression of a tartan pattern.

Then there is a toque of fur, swathed with a scarf of gay tartan faille, fastened at the side with a gold pin.

Sporran bags, plaid scarfs and ornaments with such British emblems as the lion and the unicorn figure prominently among accessories in the hat collections.

Apart from the royal influence, there are two main trends in the new season's millinery—hat will be worn on the top of the head, showing a lot of hair at the back and sides; hat will be high, and if the crown itself is flat, height will be achieved by lofty trimmings.

MILITARY NOTE

There is a distinct military note in the autumn dresses—again the influence of the royal visit. The colorful brilliance of the military review the King witnessed at Versailles is the inspiration for gowns for both day and evening wear.

Sparkling orders and decorations have been copied to provide the trimmings.

Two diamond stars glitter on the lapel of a black coat. A row of little colored ribbons—exactly like medal ribbons—trim the corsage of a dress. A crimson ribbon supports a diamond star on a white blouse. Gay variations of sergeants' stripes adorn the sleeves of jackets and coats.

A little khaki-colored suit of woolen material again reflects the military trend. Its plain skirt has one box pleat in front, and its jacket is cut like an officer's coat.

Many town suits have long-fitting jackets reaching almost to the knee. Pockets are introduced on the sleeves in place of cuffs in one model of bright blue tweed fastened with black buttons.

GLAMOUR FOR EVENING

Glamour is the keynote for the evening. There are lovely formal evening gowns of chiffon, lace and tulle—wide-skirted and floating, all cut to show the shoulders, and without a trace of a shoulder strap. They are worn with long lace gloves, finished with a double frill just below the shoulders.

The white frocks the Queen wore in Paris have led to a profusion of white dresses for evening.

Catholic Women Honor League President

Mrs. T. H. Hay Guest At Tea and Reception Yesterday

Mrs. T. H. Hay of Regina, national president of the Catholic Women's League of Canada, who is making her first official tour of the west since her election to the presidency in June last, was warmly welcomed by local members of the league at a reception and tea held in the Elizabethan room of the Empress Hotel yesterday afternoon.

Arranged by the executive of the Diocesan subdivision of the league, the guest of honor was received by a reception committee headed by Mrs. W. H. Munzie, diocesan president, and Mrs. Blair Reid, president of the Victoria subdivision, and the following members of the executive: Mrs. M. Gillespie, Mrs. Ebbes-Canavan, Mrs. A. Grant, Mrs. M. Fagan, Mrs. Vernon Thomson, Mrs. W. McManus, Mrs. H. A. Goward, Mrs. J. Potts, Mrs. A. F. Windau, Mrs. W. Temple and the Misses Madeline Clay, Norah O'Connell and Rose McKenna. Among the out-of-town guests were Mrs. J. A. Jenest of Cranbrook and the Misses Conway of Montreal.

BRIEF ADDRESSES

Mrs. Munzie gracefully welcomed the national president on behalf of the diocesan executive. She congratulated Mrs. Hay upon her election to the highest office in the gift of the league, and expressed the hope that her tenure of the presidency might be "filled with good works and rich with blessings." Father A. B. Wood, league chaplain, supplemented the welcome to Mrs. Hay, recalling the many outstanding women who had been her predecessors in office. He also touched briefly upon the history of the Victoria subdivision and its achievements.

Mrs. Hay was presented with a beautiful corsage bouquet of gardenias and violets on behalf of the executive. Tea was served from a table centred with a beautiful bowl of mauve and white cosmos. Mrs. W. McManus and Miss Harriet O'Brien presiding at the tea and coffee urns.

After tea, Mrs. Hay addressed the gathering, speaking of the places and subdivisions she had visited since her election in June, particularly the Peace River district, which she said was a glorious country. At Saskatoon she met Bishop Murray, who wished to be remembered to the Victoria members, as also did Archbishop John Hugh Macdonald, whom she met in Edmonton.

TO SPEAK WEDNESDAY

While in Victoria on her official visits to the subdivisions, Mrs. Hay will attend the sessions of the International Conference on Correspondence Education at the Empress Hotel this week, at which the Minister of Education for Saskatchewan will be one of the speakers.

Mrs. Hay is leaving today on her official visit to the subdivision up-island, and tomorrow will address the members of the Victoria and district subdivisions at the Queen of Peace Hall, when she will answer any questions.

Many Girl Brides In New York

NEW YORK (AP)—One hundred and twelve child brides—all under 16 years of age—were dismissed from New York city schools during the last year, a report disclosed today.

Harold G. Campbell, superintendent of schools, said one girl was 12 years old, four were 13, 27 were 14 and 80 were 15. He said 334 pupils—only two of them boys—who married at 16 also had been dismissed.

Mrs. K. Kreuger Makes Deathbed Statement

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Only a 50-50 chance was accorded Mrs. Emila Kreuger, wife of symphony conductor Karl Kreuger, today to survive the bullet wounds inflicted by her maid's jealous husband.

Her voice diminished to a whisper by pain, she gave police a "deathbed statement," as 29-year-old Charles McDonald, unemployed electrician, was held under $50,000 bond on a charge of assault with intent to murder her.

McDonald, officers said, had been attempting to create the impression an unusual affection existed between Mrs. Kreuger and his estranged wife, Frances, mother of his 23-month-old daughter.

"The only relation that ever existed between Frances and me was that of an employer and an employee," the white-faced patient replied.

McDonald made a bid for freedom on a writ of habeas Corpus, but this was doomed when a formal charge was filed against him. His attorney, William Bronsten, announced McDonald would plead innocent and innocent by reason of insanity.

Woman Launches Penal Reform

"Sensible" Woman's Prison In New York

NEW YORK (CP)—In a modern 13-story building on the verge of Greenwich Village Miss Ruth Collins, a former Detroit social worker, directs what she calls "a sensible women's prison."

Having the outside appearance of an expensive apartment house, this experimental unit of New York City's prison system is conducted on the lines of a rehabilitation institution for its 500 inmates rather than as a house of incarceration. Prisoners are provided with cultural and educational facilities, are taught trades, permitted to organize social clubs and, depending on their conduct records, are granted every privilege but freedom.

The prison matrons are chosen specially for their experience in rehabilitation work. Discipline is maintained without strong-arm methods, breaches of regulations being punished by withdrawal of privileges.

Outlining the routine of the prison, Miss Collins emphasized the amount of recreation time allotted during the day. Prisoners rise in the morning at 6:30, have breakfast and are in the prison shops by 8. Working hours in the shops run to five and a half hours daily. Prison clothing is made. During the rest of the day, until they retire at 9 p.m., the prisoners are free to engage in any activity they wish. After six years of experimentation, prison authorities are convinced this system is more conducive to reform than harsher institutions.

Scores of Women Visit Star's Grave

"Lady In Black" Is Among Visitors To Valentino's Tomb

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The memory of Rudolph Valentino drew scores of women to his tomb today on the twelfth anniversary of his death.

Adding one more fantastic touch to the story of the Italian-born gardener who became a world-famous movie lover was the expected annual appearance of "the lady in black."

Deeply veiled, she comes each August 23 with a spray of red roses, Valentino's favorite flower, places it in a wall holder and slips away. Her identity is not publicly known.

From England, and even India, the caretaker has received money from Valentino admirers for flowers today.

Relish Salad Dressing
23 cup sweetened condensed milk, 1/4 cup vinegar, 1/4 teaspoon salt, 1/4 teaspoon dry mustard, 1/4 teaspoon paprika, 1/4 cup mixed olives, sweet pickle pimientos, finely chopped.
Blend thoroughly sweetened condensed milk, vinegar, salt, mustard and paprika. Add olives, sweet pickle and pimientos and beat until smooth. If thicker consistency is desired, place in refrigerator to chill before serving. Serve on meat, fish, or cooked vegetable salad. Makes 1 2/3 cups.

Bride's Mayonnaise
When it's hot even in the shade, a crisp salad glorified with a tangy dressing is a dependable first aid prescription for witting appetites. A perfect mayonnaise used to be proof of the cook's patience as well as her skill. But nowadays even a bride can plan confidently on perfect salad dressing for her first home cooked menu. There is no more need for adding oil drop by drop with prayerful hope that the temperamental mixture won't curdle. Here's a new quick recipe for mayonnaise made with sweetened condensed milk that's magically curdproof. You just put everything into a bowl, stir only enough to blend the ingredients, and the mixture thickens to perfect mayonnaise texture. It's economical, too, because one can of sweetened condensed milk makes two batches of mayonnaise.

Gardiner Makes Record Flight

Flies From Vancouver to Quessnel in 2 Hours
15 Minutes

QUESNEL, B.C. (CP)—An airplane carrying Hon. J. G. Gardiner, Federal Minister of Agriculture, and J. G. Turgeon, M.P. Cariboo, yesterday set a record for a flight from Vancouver to this Cariboo district centre. It covered the 270-mile distance in two hours and 15 minutes.

The federal government representatives spoke here last night after which they addressed meetings at Williams Lake and Canim Lake. Wednesday they will speak at Lillooet, Shalalth and Pemberton, returning to Vancouver that night.

Mr. Gardiner said he planned to visit Summerland for the annual picnic at the Dominion experimental farm, returning to the Fraser Valley on Saturday. He is scheduled to open the Canadian Pacific Exhibition at Vancouver, August 29.

Mr. Turgeon will attend the British Columbia Liberal convention at Kelowna later this week, accompanied by Louis Le Bourdais, member of the British Columbia Legislature for Cariboo.

Crop Failures May Be Unknown

Predicted Meteorologists
Will Estimate Seasonal Rainfall

CAMBRIDGE, Eng. (CP Cable)—A prediction crop failures eventually may be almost unknown was made by Sir John Russell of the Rothamsted experimental station, speaking today to the British Association for the Advancement of Science.

Sir John said meteorologists some day would be able to estimate the probable rainfall during the crop growing season, from which a table of expectancy of yields could be worked out.
"We can expect to look forward to a time when crop failures will be almost unknown and when crop production will involve even less labor than it does at present," he said.

London is threatened with loss of its water supply within 35 years, Dr. Samuel Buchan, geological authority, told the association.

"A general progressive lowering of the level of water in the underground reservoir of London has been taking place over a long period, but during the past few years the fall has become more marked," he reported.

"Unless the fall is checked, the reservoir will be exhausted in 35 years or so."

On Thursday from 3 to 5 a social tea will be held at the home of Mrs. L. Powers, Langford Lodge, Langford Lake. A home cooking and candy stall, housewife and a novelty game will be among the attractions. The proceeds will be devoted to the funds of St. Matthew's Guild.

Economical - Irradiated - Safe

Junior I.O.D.E. Plan Fete Tomorrow

Many attractions have been arranged by the girls of the Royal Bridge Junior Chapter, I.O.D.E., for their garden party, which is to be held at the home of Mrs. Wm. Ellis, Beach Drive, tomorrow afternoon.

There will be a home-cooking stall, and house-houses will be played during the afternoon. A fortune-teller will be in attendance and tea will be served. In case of rain, tea will be served inside.

The committee consists of Joy Savage, convener, Ursula Hills, Jean Broughton, Margaret Hughes and Betty Cottet.
The primary chapters are urged to support this affair, as the proceeds will go to chapter's educational fund.

Youth Symposium Will Be Held

Under the auspices of the Spencer Backler branch of the Young Communist League of Victoria, a youth symposium will be held at 1010 Langley Street at 8 tomorrow evening.

A number of speakers from other youth clubs will discuss various phases of "A Progressive Youth Movement" in Victoria. Music for dancing will be furnished, and refreshments will be served. Young people are invited to attend.

PRIEST HONORED

GANGES HARBOR.—A happy gathering took place recently at Fulford Harbor, South Salt Spring, when a delegation of some of the pioneer Catholic families of Sidney and district came over by launch and attended mass in Father E. M. Schelan's Church at Fulford, afterward holding a picnic. A cheque as a token of appreciation of his many years' service in the district was presented to Father Schelan by Mrs. W. Thomas, vice-president of the Altar Society. Father Schelan has been for over 20 years connected with North and South Saanich and was recently transferred to Fulford Harbor.

Democracy Seen
In Mail SchoolSpeakers of Three Countries Stress Equality of Opportunity

Correspondence education is an instrument of democracy because it seeks to provide equality of opportunity for all. It can achieve this not only by providing teaching for the pupil who lives where there are no schools, but also in the rural school by making possible a fuller and more individualized course of study.

That was the picture of the school-by-mail drawn at the first session of the first International Conference on Correspondence Education in the Empress Hotel yesterday afternoon. It was sketched by four speakers, one from British Columbia, one from Australia and two from the United States.

The keynote of the conference was given by the chairman of the session, Dr. K. O. Broady, professor of school administration at the University of Nebraska, in his opening remarks:

"This conference is motivated by the practical ideal of equality of educational opportunity. . . . that is the extending of education of equal quality to the student whatever his birth may be, wherever his home and whatever his reasonable aspirations in life."

The purpose of the three-day sessions, he said, was to permit an exchange of ideas, a stock-taking of what had been done throughout the world and the planning of new steps, perhaps even of a new direction, for the work of education by mail.

HON. G. M. WEIR
How far correspondence education has progressed in British Columbia was told by Hon. G. M. Weir, Minister of Education, who brought the greetings of the provincial government to the conference.

If equality of education were to be given in a province where only 1 of 1 per cent of the area was municipalized, and where 30 per cent of the population was spread over 99 per cent of the territory, correspondence teaching was essential, he said.

The success of the system was attested by letters from trappers, fishermen, lighthouse keepers and a host of others congratulating the Department of Education on its work.

Dr. Weir spoke especially of the provision of technical and vocational courses by correspondence, and said these and other courses had also been used to enrich the curriculum in small high schools in remote districts.

He said one-third of those enrolled for secondary subjects were adults.

AUSTRALIAN SPEAKER
"No system of education is satisfactory unless it embraces every member of the community," said Dr. W. Finigan, headmaster of Blackfriars Correspondence School, Sydney, Australia, operated by the government of New South Wales.

He went on to tell what had been achieved in his country, the first to adopt public correspondence education. "We have carried teaching beyond the villages to remote settlements and outposts," he said.

The school had been started in 1916 and today had 6,500 pupils and a staff of 150. The necessity for periodic revision to keep it in line with the times and the needs of its students had been borne in mind ever since its foundation, he said.

The results achieved in examinations had proved that a correspondence school pupil, provided he was earnest and the subject matter given him was designed to be of interest, could compete quite satisfactorily with students in the regular schools.

Dr. Finigan told how radio had been worked into the correspondence teaching pattern, and described the latest development, the traveling workshop which moved by rail from town to town and gave practical instruction in mechanics and various other forms of craftsmanship.

MOVEMENT IN U.S.

Dr. R. C. Haight, deputy superintendent of the department of public instruction at the University of Montana and president of the conference, foresaw that one of the outcomes of the meeting would be the establishment of an integrated correspondence course system in some of the more sparsely settled states of the union, along the lines followed in Canada, Australia and New Zealand.

He suggested a pattern for such a system, statewide in character but with provision for exchange of ideas between states, following all the child's school life from elementary to post-high school stages.

Dr. Haight's address was given

Program of League Against War and Fascism to Cripple U.S. Says Former President

WASHINGTON (AP)—Dr. J. B. Matthews told a House of Representatives committee yesterday one of the aims of the American League Against War and Fascism was to cripple American munition industries and bring on mutiny in the army in case of war between the United States and Soviet Russia.

Matthews, a writer and lecturer, who described himself as a disillusioned "fellow traveler" with the Communists, was the first president of the league.

Last winter the league was rechristened the League for Peace and Democracy, but Matthews said its program remained the same. Eight government employees were listed as members of the league in testimony before the committee last week.

He said at the first league congress the platform adopted pledged members:

To work towards the stopping of the manufacture and transport of munitions and all other material essential to the conduct of war through mass demonstrations, picketing and strikes.

To expose everywhere the extensive preparations for war being carried on under the guise of aiding national recovery.

To oppose the policies of American imperialism in the Far East, in Latin America, especially in Cuba; and throughout the world.

To support the peace policies of the Soviet Union, for total and universal disarmament.

Matthews asserted he was a former "inside worker" for the Communists.

Matthews testified Communist leaders expressed gratification they "had several strategic men in important plants and industries where they would be in a position to sabotage vital processes in event the United States should become involved in a war against the Soviet Union."

The Communists, he said, were confident they could control Harry Bridges, labor leader, and he "would be able to paralyze shipping on the west coast."

Matthews said that the league now claimed about 4,000,000 members, a great many of whom he knew were ignorant of its real purposes.

NAVY PROMOTIONS

LONDON (AP)—Promotion of eight captains to the ranks of rear-admiral is announced by the Admiralty. Three of the new rear-admirals are placed on the retired list.

Those promoted are: Capt. Edward L. S. King, Capt. Arthur F. Bridham, Capt. William E. C. Tait, Capt. Alban T. B. Curteis, Capt. Philip E. Phillips, Capt. Denham M. T. Bedford, Capt. William P. Mark-Wardlaw and Capt. Roald H. C. Hallifax.

Rear-Admirals Phillips, Bedford and Mark-Wardlaw are retired.

Rear-Admiral King continues in his post as chief of staff in the Home Fleet. Rear-Admiral Pridham two years ago was appointed to command H.M.S. Hood. Rear-Admiral Tait is commodore of the Royal Naval Barracks at Portsmouth.

Rear-Admiral Curteis commands the Royal Naval Barracks at Devonport. Rear-Admiral Phillips, submarine specialist, was recently appointed chief of staff at the Nore. Rear-Admiral Hallifax has been in command of H.M.S. Rodney since 1936.

BLIND TAUGHT
TO HEAR COLORSPsychologists Find They
Have "Optical" Illusions
By Means of Touch

MINNEAPOLIS — The blind have optical illusions. The odd way that your eye can fool you into thinking that right lines are taller than horizontal lines or that parallel lines converge in the distance is duplicated by the "feeling" fingers of the blind, according to a report by Dr. C. H. Bean of Louisiana State University.

Figures like those ordinarily used to illustrate common optical illusions were given to a group of totally blind children and grown-ups, all but three of whom had been blind from birth. The lines of the figures were in relief so that the blind could feel them out.

The same illusions were experienced by these blind persons by means of touch that seeing persons experience through their eyes. Seeing persons, however, do not have these illusions by touch.

LEARN TO "HEAR" COLORS

To speak of "loud" colors or "blue" tones is commonplace, but to some it is not just a figure of speech used to couple the messages brought to the brain by one sense pathway with those conveyed by an entirely different sense. This peculiarity of some individuals is known to psychologists as "synesthesia."

Whether the peculiarity can be learned, or whether you are "just born that way," was the subject of an experiment reported by Dr. T. H. Howells of the University of Colorado. Those taking part were trained to associate red and green lights with certain tones, and then the intensity of the hues was gradually reduced until they were very pale. Then when the tone that had been associated with green was sounded with the red color, the observers were confused about the color. When white was shown with the "red" or "green" tones, the subjects reported the colors corresponding to the tones.

TEST EVERY CHILD
IN TOWN
Every child between the ages of 10 and 13 living in a small midwestern town was given a battery of 24 psychological tests in a comprehensive program of research reported to the American Psychological Association by Drs. M. A. Wanger and Frank N. Freeman of the University of Chicago.

The object of this project, of which the very thorough testing was only the first step, was to throw light upon memory as an ability and upon the question of "power" rather than speed in intelligence.

PIG HAS NERVOUS BREAKDOWN

A pig who had a nervous breakdown when his training was upset by punishment for actions that had been previously rewarded was described by Dr. Quin F. Curtis of Cornell University.

The pig is serving as a laboratory "hero of medicine" in an attempt on the part of the Cornell psychologist to discover how neuroses have their beginnings.

In this experiment, the pig was trained to expect the reward of an apple when a certain sound was heard and punishment when another signal was given. Later, the pig was punished for "between meal" eating on the days when he had learned to expect only rewards. As a result, the pig soon refused to do his "stunt" of lifting the lid of the feeding box at all until the apple was placed in the box. The experimenter, equally "pig-headed" for the purpose of science, refused to deliver the apple until the pig had opened the cover.

Injuries Are Major Worry

MAXIE ROSENBLUM will be 34 years old next month, but he held young Bicycle Bob Pastor even in 10 rounds before 30,000 persons in Hollywood the other night.

That out of the way, the Harlem Harlequin repaired to his cafe, not far from the arena, where he is his own master of ceremonies. The place was packed.

Rosenbloom gets $1,000 a week in pictures.

And they used to call him a clown. Immediately after his bout with Pastor, however, Maxie, announced that he was through with the ring. Which is as it should be, considering his years, but few fighters have been as entertaining in the squared circle as the New Yorker. Rosenbloom has been one of the truly great fighters of history, although unorthodox style kept him from being one of the more magnetic office attractions. He has fought them all since 1923, which is when Dempsey out-punched Tom Gibbons and flattened Firpo.

Rosenbloom no doubt has made more money since he caught on in the film colony than he earned in his heyday. Money meant nothing to Maxie, however. No matter what he got, he'd promptly stick it into a new automobile or toss it away in a gambling game.

Dave Shade never came close to beating Rosenbloom, but was luckier with the galloping dominoes, and after one of their meetings wound up with the entire purse and Maxie's new coonskin coat.

Like the late Harry Greb, whom he fought and lived like, Rosenbloom believed in keeping in shape by fighting. The product of New York's lower East Side didn't go near a gymnasium for years, and once when a cutie asked him about his neglect of training, he explained: "The last time I was in a gym a big fellow blackened my eye. I've never been back. A bad place, that gym."

Rosenbloom had a liveried chauffeur for years, a little Italian. This same critic once asked the driver if his employer always paid him. "He does not," was the reply. "When I ask him for my money, he takes the cap off my head and says: 'You get in the back seat and I'll drive.' What are you going to do with a fellow like that?"

Rosenbloom fought his manager, Frank Bachman, between rounds as hard as he ever waged war against an opponent. He believed in keeping ahead of his pilot financially. They spent several periods arguing about the amount Maxie would get that particular night.

Rosenbloom did the bulk of his training in night clubs. He walked a fair damsel off the floor of the old Rendezvous Club on Broadway one night, explaining: "Listen, I've got to run over and fight a guy." He slapped Leo Lomski around at Madison Square Garden, returned to the club without as much as taking a shower, and picked up where he left off.

He did his road work behind milk wagons in the wee hours. "Break, Rosenbloom, break!" shouted an irate customer at the Garden one night.

"Aw, let him alone," said Joe Frisco, the dancer, seated beside him. "Maxie's catching up in his sleep."

Maxie Rosenbloom wouldn't do as a model for young glemen, but, as Dave Shade once remarked: "He was so wrong that he was right."

Anyway, the chances are that they'll never have to give a benefit for him.

One explanation of why these hot August days are called the "dog days" might be that they are when baseball players' dogs—feet to the uninitiated—begin to give out.

It is a long grind from the start of spring training in February or March to the world series in October, and the boys begin to feel the strain about this time. Pitchers who have been winning regularly begin to blow up. Batters experience sudden slumps. Injuries strike more frequently.

More than one pennant contender has suffered from these ill effects already. And if the current leaders, New York Yankees and Pittsburgh Pirates, fail to remain on top it probably will be because of injuries, weariness or both.

New York Giants, with Carl Hubbell in the hospital, Lou Chiozza retired, and Bob Seeds unable to play, and Chicago Cubs, who lost manager Gabby Hartnett and have had various other stars on the shelf, have been the hardest hit. Boston Red Sox lost Lefty Dwyer, with a sore arm; Cleveland's mound staff seems to have been worn out and even the Yanks haven't escaped entirely.

CUBS GO UNDER

Big Jim Tobin had plenty of "stuff" in his pitching as Pittsburgh knocked off Chicago 4 to 2 yesterday in their last game before opening a home stand against the eastern teams in the National League.

With the score tied at 1 to 1 in the seventh, the Pirates jumped on Clay Bryant for four hits and broke up the mound duel.

The defeat dropped Chicago into fourth place as Cincinnati Reds hit hard, as usual, behind Paul Derringer and walloped St. Louis Cardinals 11 to 4. Derringer earned his 17th victory with 18 hit support.

Cleveland's Bobby Feller, trying a new pitching style against the Chicago White Sox, seemed to have recovered his old effectiveness for seven innings, giving only six hits and fanning eight. But the eighth gave Chicago three runs and a 4 to 2 victory. It was all over quickly when two singles and a walk loaded the bases and Mike Kreevick cleared with a triple. As a result the Tribe started east 11½ games behind the Yankees and only one ahead of Boston.

Blackie Black of Richmond scored 10 goals in the game, a season record, and lifted his total to 82 for third place.

Drouillard to Fight Montanez

NEW YORK—The campaign of Pedro Montanez toward a titular meeting with Henry Armstrong reaches a critical stage tomorrow night when the Puerto Rican lightweight opposes Orville Drouillard, seasoned Windsor, Ont., brawler in a 10-round headline bout at Madison Square Garden.

Few, if any of the experts, figure the Canadian has much chance of going the limit with Montanez, but if Orville plays true to his habit of turning in the unexpected he may blast Pedro's hopes for keeps.

Vancouver Girl Captures Wrigley Mile Marathon at Winnipeg

WINNIPEG (CP)—A Vancouver girl and an Edmonton youth today held the western Canada Wrigley mile swimming championships, won over favored Winnipeg entries here Saturday.

George Valpy of Edmonton nosed out Wally Bertrand of Winnipeg in the men's event. Valpy's time was 26 minutes 27.1-5 seconds, a scant 1.2-16 seconds faster than his Winnipeg opponent.

Miss Gilbert and Miss O'Hara started their neck-and-neck fight from the start with Dorothy Burrell of Regina in third position where she eventually finished, 15 yards behind.

The Vancouver girl and her Winnipeg opponent were still even at the end of the first four of the five laps.

On the final lap Mary stepped up her beat to take a five-foot lead she retained to the finish. The men's race was strictly a two-man affair after Terry McAuley of Vancouver was taken from the water after two laps suffering from cramps.

Camerons Will Battle Duncan

Second Game of Island Softball Final Scheduled Tonight

One game up by virtue of Sunday's 7 to 2 victory up-island, Camerons' softballers will be out to make it two straight over Duncan Macmillan Electric tonight at the Athletic Park. Another triumph will give them the coveted Vancouver Island senior title.

Fairly evenly matched, these two outfits should provide an exciting evening for the fans. The visitors need a win to stay in the running for the crown and will field their strongest nine for the engagement. In all probability, "Rory" McEellan, Cameron's star twirler, will go to the mound again, while Elmer Evans or Chuck Baldwin will be the choice for Duncan.

Californian Medal Winner

Stu Hawley Leads Smart Field in Banff Golf Tournament

BANFF, Alta.—Banff's tricky 6,645-yard course, wet from an overnight flurry, set a smart field of U.S. and Canadian amateurs back on their heels yesterday as Banff's annual golf week started off with 18-hole qualifying rounds in the Prince of Wales event. Among a select crowd of three-putters who took consolation in the locker room, was Stu Hawley of Piedmont, California, whose 78 led the qualifying field. Right behind him with 79 was Eddie Wiseman, Regina, the New York American's hockey star, who was runner-up in the Banff event last year. S. P. Howard, Lethbridge, was third with 80 while Ronnie McWilliams, Calgary, edged in with an 81.

Hawley, former California state champion, had tough luck with some three-putt greens, a common failing among yesterday's starters, and his clubmate, from San Francisco, Stuart Heatley, also a former California champion, was bracketed at 82 with Alvin Hobbes, King City, California. Other qualifiers were: J. P. Alexander, Calgary; Don McKenzie, Calgary; Frederic W. Nicholls, Reading, Pa.; L. S. Crosby, Banff, 85; W. D. Bailey, Calgary; Wilder Ripley, New York, 86; G. T. Wadref, Stillwater, Minn., 87; F. F. Breuil, Buffalo, N.Y.; Joe Newberger, Seattle, 88; J. A. Mackay, Medicine Hat, 89; Temple McMullen, S. P. Powell, Vancouver, 90; W. Alender and Lorne Carr, Calgary, T. Paine Jr., Calgary, 91; H. A. Elford, H. J. Ough, Calgary; Don Campbell, Victoria, 92; Deborck, Calgary; Jim McMullen, Vancouver, and Dr. F. B. Ross, Kalspell, Montana, 92.

Kris F. B. Ross, Kalspell, Montana, led qualifiers for the Brewster Cup with an 89, while Mrs. Lydia Peterman, Tacoma, was next with 98.

An east-west four-man team lifted the team match event with a score of 326 made up of Stu Heatley's 82, Stuart Hawley's 78, Fred Nicoll's 84 and Alvin Hobbes' 82. A Pacific Coast team comprising Mrs. S. P. Powell and Mrs. Gus Lyons, Vancouver, with Mrs. E. D. Todd, Victoria, and Mrs. Wilder Ripley, New York, took the other team match event with 428.

MONTREAL (CP)—Governors of the National Hockey League will hold a special meeting in New York Thursday to discuss the crisis confronting Montreal Maroons, President Frank Calder announced today.

Management of the Maroons, convinced a couple of seasons of poor financial returns were due to Montreal's inability to support two professional hockey teams, has been negotiating for transfer of the club and franchise to St. Louis, home of the Flors of the American Association.

DAVIDS VS. ZULUS GAMES TOMORROW

Touring Colored Ball Teams in Three-game Series at Athletic Park

House of David vs. African Zulu Giants will be the attraction at the Athletic Park for baseball fans tomorrow afternoon and evening, and the following evening. This three-game series between the colored touring clubs has been arranged by the Victoria Baseball Association to settle the question of the strength of the outfits.

The first game tomorrow will start at 2, while both night fixtures will be played at 5.30. Lots of heavy slugging should be the order as both line-ups are composed of hard-hitting sluggers, and there should be a little comedy too. "Schoolboy" Lomax is expected to go to the mound for the bearded David brethren, while Dea, who has not been seen in action at the enclosure, will pitch for the African Giants. The gates of the park will be opened one hour before the games start.

Arsenal in Pre-season Spotlight

Trouble With Compton and Record Transfer Holds Interest of Fans

LONDON (CP)—Cricket remains in the sport limelight, but talk these days is turning rapidly to England's most popular sport—soccer. The football season opens Saturday, two weeks before the national sport's first-class schedule closes.

Off-season soccer gossip has centered principally round one of the country's most colorful clubs, the famous Arsenal. And, strangely enough, the London team figures largely in an incident involving a footballer's love for cricket.

Denis Compton, 20-year-old Gunner forward who is making a name for himself with his powerful hitting for Middlesex and sparkling play for England against Australia in test cricket, was the unwilling principal in an Arsenal-Marylebone Cricket Club argument.

The governing cricket body invited Compton to tour South Africa with an English team this winter, but the North London athlete is under contract to perform for Arsenal. George Allison, fiery manager of the Gunners, publicly berated the M.C.C. who made a polite explanation, but kept the invitation open. Compton finally declined the tour.

It then remained for Arsenal to break its own—and soccer's—all-time record in transfer fees. After weeks of negotiation the Highbury Club enticed Byrn Jones, Wolverhampton Wanderers and Welsh international inside-forward, for a fee of £14,000 ($68,600), more than a $10,000 higher than the fee paid by the Gunners in 1928 for David Jack.

The August 27-May 6 schedule for the 88-team league calls for each club in all four divisions to play 42 games. The eight-and-one-half-month campaign is played throughout the English winter in varied weather conditions.

Preston North End, who finished third in league play, won the English Cup competition for the second time in the club's history last year. Tied 9-0 after the regulation 90 minutes in the final at Wembley Stadium, the white-jerseyed team scored after 29 minutes' overtime. George Mutch, brilliant forward, scored the "million-dollar" goal from a penalty.

Last year's play in the four divisions was marked by thrilling leadership battles until practically the last day of the schedule. Arsenal won the major-division championship with 52 points, one more than Wolverhampton Wanderers and three better than Preston. Aston Villa, one of the originals of the league who had retained first division status until the 1936-37 season when demoted to the second league, finished at the top with 57 points, four points ahead of Manchester United and Sheffield United. Manchester nosed out Sheffield for promotion by virtue of a superior goal average.

Third-division titles were won by Millwall (southern) and Tranmere Rovers (northern). Manchester City and West Bromwich Albion were relegated to the second division; Barnsley and Stockport County from second to third division. Gillingham, last-place club in the southern section, lost its league status to Ipswich Town, who finished third in the Southern League last season.

Charlton Athletic, who made a tour of Canada and the United States two years ago, will be handicapped by injuries to players in opening games of the campaign. Hobbs, speedy left-winger, has not yet recovered from an accident in the cup replay against Aston Villa last year, while Jobling, Ford and Armitage, who were operated on for cartilage trouble recently, will also see the games from the sidelines.

Nellie Bly's World Trip

2—THROUGH EUROPE

Nellie Bly probably would not have made her famous trip if it had not been for Jules Verne. This French author had written a book 18 years before, a book in which a character named Phileas Fogg was supposed to make a round-the-world trip in 80 days, making use of "liners, railways, carriages, yachts, trading vessels, sledges and elephants."

Fogg did not make the trip in real life, but the idea was the important thing. Nellie Bly decided to carry it out, and on her way she wanted to see the author and tell him of her plan.

After a short visit in England, she crossed the channel and visited Jules Verne at Amiens. "Oh, my! Oh, my!" exclaimed the grey-haired man when he saw her. "What a child! It is possible that a child is going all that long way by herself?"

Newspaper reporters later visited Verne, and asked him to give his views on the trip. "It is a brilliant plan," he said. "Traveling is faster now than when I wrote my book. It may be that Miss Bly will go around the world in 78 or 79 days."

Meanwhile Nellie was speeding on. She had crossed the Atlantic in eight days, a good record at that time, though the best modern liners can make the journey in four and a half days. Aboard the Indian Mail express, she sped across France, through Switzerland and down to Brindisi, in southern Italy. From there she sailed to New York.

"In a few hours I will be on the bosom of the Mediterranean. I am quite well, though somewhat tired. I send greetings to all my friends."

Going around the world in a hurry may be exciting, but it means that many interesting things must be left out of the trip. The boat which carried the eager young American stopped at Port Said, Egypt, but there was no time for her to make a real visit in that amazing country. She did not see the pyramids, or the Great Sphinx.

Onward she had to go, onward through the Suez Canal. "It took us 24 hours to go through the canal," she wrote. "Our next port was Aden. Before we came to it, we passed 12 high mountains, known as the Twelve Apostles."

"Passengers are warned not to go ashore in Aden because of the intense heat. We did, however, and the heat was not so intense as we expected. The mountains are black; the people are black, and so are the animals. There is not a speck of green foliage." During a short visit to Aden last winter, I saw more negroes than I had seen during all the time I was in Egypt.

HOROSCOPE

Wednesday, August 24, 1938
Benefic aspects rule strongly through the early hours of this day. It is a fortunate planetary government for women.

It is a lucky wedding day, for it presages prosperity and steady progress. Those who plight troth before noon need not fear divorce.

Real estate is a profitable investment under this direction of the stars, which stimulates interest in home-owning. Small centres of population should be selected by those of limited means.

Automobile accidents will continue to be numerous, despite safety campaigns. Changes in radio of a radical character are prognosticated. A clever invention will contribute to improved service.

Cosmo Gordon Lang, the Archbishop of Canterbury, has come under a sign presaging great expansion for the Church of England. In the United States there will be growth among Protestant Episcopal organizations.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a year of gain in property or income, but many will be tempted to waste their time in costly pleasures. Quarrels caused by resentment are indicated.

Children born on this day probably will be inclined toward independence and individuality. Many subjects of this sign of Virgo have artistic talent and most of them possess a sense of humor.

Dorothy Dix's Letter Box

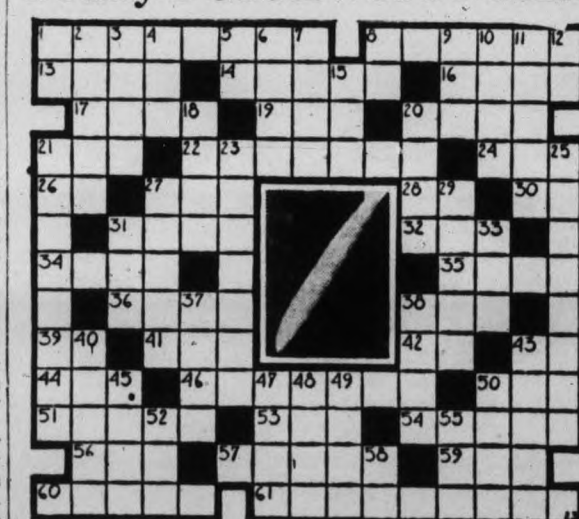

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—I am one of those guys who hate baby talk and, unfortunately, I am in love with a girl who makes me so darn mad doing it I could almost cuss. She greets me with: "Hi, big boy! Do great big boy love itty-bitty girlie?" I also hate nicknames like "Little Sweetiepie." What shall I do to break her of this darn habit?
PERCY.

Answer: I also loathe baby talk and if I were on the jury I would bring in a verdict of justifiable homicide if you choked her, but inasmuch as you would perhaps hesitate to take that drastic method of curing her just tell her that you can't stand that idiotic mushy line any more and that you are not coming back until she learns how to talk like a sensible human being. And you won't be doing yourself any harm if you never return, because the baby-talk girl develops into the "poor-little-me" wife who never acts her age and is a pain in the neck to her husband as long as she lives.
DOROTHY DIX.

DEAR MISS DIX—I am a boy of 19, very dissatisfied and upset about my future. I don't know what to do. Everything I do is wrong. I have just given up a perfectly good job for no reason at all. I fail at everything I try. I feel if I could go away from home I would make good and that I would be happy. Do you think I would make good if I went to some strange place?
BILL.

Answer: It takes the same qualities to make good everywhere. Industry, grit, stick-at-iveness, putting your heart and back into what you are doing. If you give up everything you attempt as soon as you get tired of it, you will be a failure wherever you go. What you want to do is to have a heart-to-heart session with yourself and make up your mind to get a job and dig in and make a success of it. But your trouble is mainly adolescence, and you will get over that.
DOROTHY DIX.

Praise for Parade

Two visitors from California who were in Victoria during the August parades rate it the equal of Pasadena's monster New Year Day parade.
In a letter to Ernest H. Harris, president of the Victoria Junior Chamber of Commerce, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Cassels of Pacific Palisades, California, say: "Your day parade was one of the loveliest we have ever seen. We have attended the New Year Day parades in Pasadena many times, but your floats were every bit as lovely." "You should be proud of your most beautiful city, with its quaint charm; the grace of its Parliament Buildings, and the beauty of its lovely hotel overlooking the harbor," the writers added.

Mail Teachers Air Problems

Methods and Snags of Correspondence Teaching
Debated by Sections

The first international conference on correspondence education, which opened yesterday afternoon in the Empress Hotel, got down to serious business this morning with round-table discussions of various problems encountered in teaching by mail.

The delegates, who have come to Victoria from all parts of Canada and the United States and from New Zealand, Australia and Norway, divided into three sections during the morning. Full stenographic reports of all the debates will be printed after the conference and are expected to be of great value in the improvement and extension of correspondence teaching in the various countries represented.

Dr. Fred G. Stevenson, director of correspondence study at the University of Michigan, led a general discussion on the organization of correspondence schools and the selection, accrediting and promotion of teachers.

The highlight of this section's work was an outline by Dr. A. G. Butcher, headmaster of the New Zealand Government Correspondence School, of teaching conditions in general in the southern Dominion which brought gasps of amazement from the Canadian and United States delegates.

Items in the progressive New Zealand program mentioned by Dr. Butcher included the fact that students preparing for teaching were paid salaries during their attendance at teachers' colleges; that teachers were appointed entirely on a rating system, without the need for references or political pull; that permanent, fully qualified relief teachers were employed to fill gaps left by sickness or other reasons, and that the government paid one year's university tuition for students who had graduated from secondary schools.

In another room, fitted out with exhibits of the material used in correspondence schools in Canada, the United States and other countries, a second section met to discuss the preparation of mailed courses.

Dr. Fred T. Williams, director of secondary-course construction in the extension division of the University of Nebraska, was chairman.

In addition to the content of the courses, matters discussed included the provision for individual differences between pupils, the preparation and administration of tests and examinations, special courses for abnormal students, and the material of teaching by mail, including printing and mailing methods.

Dr. John Straka, supervisor of the correspondence instruction class at the University of Nebraska, was chairman of the third section, dealing with the work of the correspondence teacher and methods of evaluating the results obtained.

Methods of using existing commercial plants such as machine shops, factories and service stations, and the equipment of the pupil's own farm as adjuncts to technical training by mail were one of the chief subjects under discussion.

The round-table discussions will continue tomorrow morning under the same general headings. This afternoon the delegates were to attend a short general meeting, then drive out to Butchart's Gardens for tea as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. R. P. Butchart. There will be a dinner and an evening session tonight.

The conference will wind up tomorrow afternoon.

City Pays for Aerial Truck

Robert Bickle Accepts
Cheque for $22,485.30;
Sick Policy Debated

Robert Bickle today received a $22,485.30 cheque from Acting Mayor James Adam as payment in full for the new aerial ladder truck formally accepted by the City Council yesterday.

The cheque was made out today following a special session of the city's finance committee last night after the method of payment had produced debate in the council chamber.

By meeting the charge immediately, the city saved $107.70, as well as carrying charges.

Question was raised over the payment policy by certain aldermen following reception of the fire wardens' report, which also included a request for a statement of policy on city employees forced to leave their jobs for protracted periods through illness.

Yesterday Ald. W. L. Morgan brought in a motion to have the city pay $22,593 forthwith for the new truck, stating that procedure would relieve the city of carrying charges of 6 per cent per annum.

Alderman Ed Williams voiced strong opposition, stating the city should have the equipment for a full three months' test before meeting the bill in full.

COVERED BY GUARANTEE

Alderman Morgan stated the purchase was covered by a guarantee in case something went wrong with the equipment.

The best guarantee was to withhold full payment, Alderman Williams contended. He was supported by Alderman John A. Worthington and Alderman B. J. Gadsden, who stated he understood payment was to be made over a period of three years.

Alderman S. H. Okell introduced an amendment to refer the question to the finance committee, of which Alderman Williams and Worthington are members, with power to act. The amendment was carried.

On the issue of providing for ill employees, the fire wardens reported on a member of the department for whom such provision was being made.

Alderman Archie Wills expressed the wardens' sympathy with the man but, to protect the committee, asked that a policy be drafted covering such cases. He thought firemen and those exposed to greater health hazards should be given special consideration in any scheme that might be drawn up.

Acting Mayor James Adam was supported in a move to refer the matter to the fire wardens and finance committee for a report and recommendation.

Cool Evenings and Breezes a Joy

Dr. and Mrs. Newburgh of Ann Arbor Say No One
Here Should Complain

Enchanted with the British Columbia coast, which they are visiting for the first time, Dr. L. H. Newburgh, professor of internal medicine at the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor, and Mrs. Newburgh are at the Empress Hotel today.

Dr. Newburgh, one of the authorities in his field in the eastern United States, has been commissioned by the Canadian Medical Association to place before the general public of western Canada the fundamental rules for good health.

"I am going to tell the people how easy it is to select food that will give the body a chance and avoid certain diseases," Dr. Newburgh said.

Dr. Newburgh and his wife, who was a Miss Irene Haskell of Montreal, cruised as far north as Prince Rupert and then went into Tweedsmuir National Park. "It is so refreshing here," Dr. Newburgh said this morning as he basked in the sun on the lawn of the hotel. "In our part of the country at this time of the year you are always conscious of being uncomfortable because of the heat. When you eventually get to sleep it isn't real sleep and you wake up quite tired. The cool evenings here and the breezes are a joy. No one should complain about them."

Mrs. Newburgh is a rock garden enthusiast and has overcome all sorts of obstacles to create one at her Michigan home. She will visit some of Victoria's most notable rock gardens during her visit here.

Mrs. Alfred Calderon and Harold Bate of this city and Miss Eleanor Bate of Sidney are cousins of Mrs. Newburgh.

Adult Education Luncheon Theme

W. A. R. Kerr, University of Alberta Head, Speaker
at Kiwanis Meeting

W. A. R. Kerr, president of the University of Alberta, addressed a luncheon meeting of the Kiwanis Club and visiting delegates to the International Conference on Correspondence Education and visiting members of Rotary International at the Empress Hotel today on the subject, "Some Aspects of Adult Education."

Adult education included all activities with an education purpose carried on by people engaged in the ordinary businesses of life, the speaker said. Adult education, he continued, should be a voluntary thing. The average man—the citizen—should pursue learning or learning would run away from him.

Age of the person carrying on adult education did not matter, although the peak of learning capacity was generally placed between 20-25 years. This was superior to all other age periods. It was never too late to learn though.

Adult education was new knowledge, in every line, available to man throughout his lifetime. The different organizations such as the Y.M.C.A., Y.W.C.A., women's clubs, church organizations, service clubs, correspondence schools, university extension organizations, radio, political party study groups, the different information sent out by the state, many others all aided in keeping alive the intellectual powers of the adult.

Jack MacFarlane, president of the Kiwanis Club, was in the chair. He welcomed all the visiting club members, delegates and visitors to the luncheon.

Discuss Fate of Czechoslovakia

Hitler and Horthy Said to See Eye to Eye
on Problem

KIEL, Germany (AP) — Czechoslovakia's fate was listed as one of the chief conversational topics between Chancellor Hitler and Admiral Nicholas Horthy today as the German and Hungarian leaders went to inspect heavily fortified Heligoland.

Informed Nazi quarters said the two statesmen saw eye to eye on the problem, the "satisfactory" solution of which might enable Hungary to grant Hitler and Premier Mussolini of Italy their wish for an Hungarian-Jugoslav reconciliation.

These sources pointed out Hungary would like the autonomy of Hungarians in Czechoslovakia, if not their return to Hungary, just as Hitler wanted the autonomy or return of 3,500,000 Sudeten Germans in Czechoslovakia.

It was said that should this come to pass for Hungary, that country might forget revisionist demands—growing out of the post-war Trianon Peace Treaty which took away a third of her 18,500,000 population—on sections now belonging to Jugoslavia.

Another subject for discussion among Hitler, Horthy and other officials, including Premier Bela Imred and Foreign Minister Kolumon von Kanya of Hungary, was the question of how to increase German exports to Hungary so as to enable Hungary to send more wheat and other agricultural products to Germany.

Hungarian sources said Germany owes Hungary 24,000,000 marks ($9,600,000) and can pay only with deliveries of manufactured goods which Hungary, as a predominantly farming country, cannot absorb in sufficiently large quantities.

Trend Back To Feudalism

Tendency of Farmers to Trade Freedom, Convention Told

ST. ANNE DE BELLEVUE, Que. (CP) — A 20th century brand of feudalism appears to be looming on the agricultural horizon in the United States, Henry C. Taylor of the Farm Foundation in Chicago told the fifth International Conference of Agricultural Economists today.

Striving for security, Taylor said, the farmers are under a strong tendency to trade for it their long possessed freedom. The urge may have in it the makings of a trend back to feudalism, he said, though it would not be a return to any form of slavery.

"The whole farming program of the United States is more and more in the hands of special agents and less and less left to the will of the farmers," the Chicagoan declared. "Thus there seems to be a passing of freedom to farm, with the hope of improvement in security of tenure and possibly an improvement in the incomes of working farmers." Landlords were taking more interest in the management of the land. Insurance companies and other money lenders were beginning to exercise control over land on which they loaned money. Management companies supervised farms of absentee landlords. And on top of this there was the government's excursion into the field of economic planning and control.

Once, Taylor said, it was the American ideal that every farmer should own the land he tilled. Now, from this thought of freedom "the people of the United States have apparently turned aside."

At the weekly meeting of the British-Israel Association tonight at the Y.M.C.A., the speaker will be E. Tomlinson of Edmonton. His subject will be "Stones That Speak." Mr. Arnup will give his lecture on Judah at a future date.
